Guard Your Liberties! Instruct Congressmen by Wire or Letter

The government Reorganization Bill, which would authorize the President to reorganize the executive and departmental structure of the Federal Government WITHOUT SUBMITTING HIS PROPOSALS TO CONGRESS, is before the House of Representatives for action.

This bill imposes autocratic powers in the President, and virtually creates a dictatorship.

It radically changes our form of constitutional and representative government, and means practically the death of American democracy.

It should be defeated.

Telegraph or write your congressman in the House of Representatives IMMEDIATELY, telling him to vote against the Reorganization Bill, which so vitally affects your interests an your liberties.

'DICTATOR' FOES LOSE TEST

Reds Riot As Blum Loses

PARIS, April 7 (AP)—More than 10,000 Leftists protesting Senate opposition to Premier Blum's demand for dictatorial financial powers fought police and Rightists outside the Senate late today.

The demonstrators attacked gendarmes with chairs and bottles—impromptu weapons snatched up from cafes along the way—while the police retaliated in free use of their clubs.

More than 100 police and steel-helmeted Mobile Guards were arrayed to prevent the masses of Socialists, Communists and Anarchists from making good the shouted threat to march on the Senate and "hang" Joseph Caillaux, 74-year-old president of the Senate finance committee and leader of the Blum opposition.

BATTLE FASCISTS

Cafe windows were shattered and tables were taken from terraces to be used as shields in the assaults on the gendarmerie.

Roosevelt to Urge Loans to States And Cities

By GEORGE DURNO

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 7—President Roosevelt is about to propose a $1,500,000,000 pump-priming program to Congress in the form of non-interest bearing loans to cities, states and political sub-divisions, it was learned authoritatively today.

WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins and his chief deputy, Aubrey Williams, were called into a White House conference this morning to discuss final phases of the plan to restore public purchasing power.

NON-INTEREST LOANS

The plan Mr. Roosevelt has in mind involves flotation of a $1,500,000,000 bond issue by the federal government. This money would be reloaned to the cities, states and counties without interest and repayable in 50 years at the rate of 2 per cent annually.

It is the President's thought that both WPA and PWA projects already plotted could be revived immediately under this new approach to economic recovery and set into operation so that by early summer

Jury Opens Probe of Asylum

District Attorney Edmund E. Dewing went before the Norfolk County grand jury today and sought action in connection with the recent series of "madhouse murders" at the Medfield State Hospital and other alleged irregularities in the institution's conduct.

At the same time, State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley and Patrick J. Moynihan, chairman of the commission on administration and finance, engaged in a sharp verbal tilt over conflicting audit reports on the state mental hospitals.

The move to seek indictments came as a surprise to persons connected with the Department of Mental Diseases and other state agencies concerned in its operation. Dewing had given no evidence of his intention to go before the grand jury.

He placed before the jury, in addition to evidence on the killings, testimony concerning falsification of records and the disappearance of a large quantity of narcotics at Medfield.

McSWEENEY CALLED

The evidence about the allegedly false records came in connection with Buckley's charge that 30 inmates were buried without coffins in potter's field graves last year and records of burial altered to conceal this.

Dewing summoned State Public Safety Commissioner Eugene M.

Move to Kill Bill Beaten, 191-169

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—The House refused today to kill the government reorganization bill. The teller vote was 191 to 169.

The ballot, a victory for the administration, was on a motion by Representative O'Connor (D) of New York, to "strike out the enacting clause" — without which the bill would have been ineffective and meaningless.

The measure was thrown open to amendment immediately afterward.

Backers of the bill said the vote was a sure indication the House would pass it eventually. But opponents still had opportunities to attempt to defeat it after amendments were disposed of.

100,000 'Paul Revere' Protests Given House

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Boston Evening American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 7—Massachusetts "Paul Reveres" today carried to Congress New England's demand that the President's government reorganization bill be defeated.

More than 300 Bay State patriots marched down Pennsylvania avenue in a protest against the measure. Despite leaden skies and a drizzling rain, enthusiasm was high and the members of the group were confident they could succeed in blocking the "dictator bill."

Setting up headquarters at the Mayflower Hotel, the delegation split into groups of 10 and went to the House to call on members of Congress.

They delivered to the representatives petitions bearing more than 100,000 names in opposition to the President's plan.

The group was headed by Mrs. Pauline Revere Auerhamer of Brookline, great-great-granddaughter of the patriot, Revere. She had been selected to present the petitions.

All along the route to the capital the ranks of the Bay State "Reveres" were swelled as delegations joined them in New Haven, New York, Philadelphia, Newark, Bridgeport, Jersey City and Trenton.

40 Nuns Flee Flames In Fitchburg Convent

FITCHBURG, April 7—Forty nuns fled to safety today when a two-alarm fire destroyed the Holy Family Institute convent of the Order of Presentation here.

Visible for half a mile, the convent was turned into a mass of roaring flames, which at times shot more than 50 feet into the air. Two sick nuns, one of them 80 years old, were carried from the building by firemen.

Despite the terrific heat, nuns, priests and volunteer students from St. Bernard's High School saved nearly all of the sacred objects in the three-story wooden building.

Firemen narrowly escaped injury when the roof of the structure fell in with a crash.

The fire, origin of which could not be determined, began in the south wing of the convent.

Immediately, 18 children, attending a kindergarten class were led from the building. The two sick nuns were borne to safety and taken to the Burbank Hospital. They are Sister Mary Vincent, 90, and Sister Mary Paula, 82.

The convent was used as a retreat for novices and a rest home for nuns. In addition, it housed nuns who teach in this city's parochial schools.

How to Free the Nation From Fear

A Letter Supporting Mrs. Patterson's Plea -:- By W. R. Hearst

Special to Boston Evening American

WASHINGTON, April 7—Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington Times and Herald, has received the following communication from William Randolph Hearst:

Los Angeles, Calif., April 7, 1938.

Mrs. Eleanor Patterson,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mrs. Patterson:

I read your article on what the President could say to banish fear.

It was fine. It was so good and timely and appropriate in every way that I would like to suggest that you go further and open the columns of your paper to suggestions from the people on this vital matter.

In such a symposium I would like to contribute the thought that what the President could say to banish fear is what he said before his election to the Presidency when he was campaigning against Mr. Hoover.

In Pittsburgh, on October 19, 1932, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"QUITE APART FROM EVERY MAN'S OWN TAX ASSESSMENT, THAT BURDEN (heavy taxation) IS A BRAKE ON ANY RETURN TO NORMAL BUSINESS ACTIVITY.

"TAXES ARE PAID IN THE SWEAT OF EVERY MAN WHO LABORS BECAUSE THEY ARE A BURDEN ON PRODUCTION AND CAN BE PAID ONLY BY PRODUCTION.

"IF EXCESSIVE, THEY ARE REFLECTED IN IDLE FACTORIES, TAX-SOLD FARMS, AND HENCE IN HORDES OF THE HUNGRY TRAMPING THE STREETS AND SEEKING JOBS IN VAIN.

"OUR WORKERS MAY NEVER SEE A TAX BILL, BUT THEY PAY IN DEDUCTIONS FROM WAGES, IN INCREASED COSTS OF WHAT THEY BUY, OR (as now) IN BROAD CESSATION OF EMPLOYMENT.

"THERE IS NOT AN UNEMPLOYED MAN—THERE IS NOT A STRUGGLING FARMER—WHOSE INTERESTS IN THE SUBJECT IS NOT DIRECT AND VITAL."

IN the same speech he said:

"I REGARD REDUCTION IN FEDERAL SPENDING AS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT ISSUES OF THIS CAMPAIGN.

"IN MY OPINION, IT IS THE MOST DIRECT AND EFFECTIVE CONTRIBUTION THAT GOVERNMENT CAN MAKE TO BUSINESS."

You will observe he advocated a reduction of taxation, and explained that taxes are paid by all the people, no matter if they are only directly levied on some of them. I fully agree.

He further said that he regarded reduction in federal spending as the most effective contribution that the government could make to business.

I agreed with that statement then. I agree with it now.

Obviously the more money is taken away from the working, creating, producing classes, and distributed to non-productive politicians, and devoted to non-productive enterprises, the less productive a country becomes, the less wealth is created, and the less wealth there is to be distributed in wages.

Furthermore, the larger the amounts that are taken away from the incomes of the people for needless government expenditures, the less the people have to spend at the stores, the less the stores buy from the factories, the fewer raw materials are purchased by the factories, and the less employment there is consequently in the stores, in the factories, and in the mines and farms.

And still further, the higher the taxes imposed on industry, the higher the costs of industrial products become, because taxes are as much a part of cost as labor or materials.

And the higher the prices of products, the fewer products people can buy.

Evidently, therefore, with incomes reduced by taxation, and prices of products increased by taxation, there is continually less retail buying; and retail buying is the basis of all prosperity.

PROSPERITY is nothing but a condition where people have money to spend and spend it.

Depression is a condition where people have not the money to spend, and consequently cannot spend it.

If the people are robbed of their purchasing power by high taxes, all the essential elements for a depression are immediately created,—a depression which grows in its vicious spiral; because the less the people buy, the fewer products are made, the fewer workers are employed, the less wages are paid, and the more purchasing power progressively decreases.

What is the remedy? The remedy is to do what Mr. Roosevelt said he was going to do,—reduce taxation.

The remedy lies in pursuing the policy which Mr. Roosevelt said he was going to pursue,—abandon any plan which did not prove successful.

Over-taxation has not proved successful.

It has proved highly detrimental as Mr. Roosevelt knew it would, and said it would, when he was running for President.

How can taxation be reduced, and still meet the expenses of government?

Obviously by reducing the expenses of government.

The government is run on a basis of reckless extravagance. Any private business run on such a basis would go into bankruptcy,—and any government run on such a basis will go into bankruptcy.

The MacDonald government in the British Empire was within three months of bankruptcy, according to Mr. Hore-Belisha, speaking at the time of the crisis; but the coalition cabinet was formed and the government put on a business basis.

It would be much easier for this government to go on a business basis than for the British Empire, because we have more resources, and because we have not such a shocking proportion of fixed armament expenses.

But we have got to have the will to do it, and the machinery to do it, and the personnel to do it.

The depression which we are going into is not based merely on fear, but on fact.

You can dissipate fear by words, but you cannot dissipate facts by words.

The fact of declining purchasing power is obvious to every one; and that fact is a SOUND BASIS for fear.

MR. ROOSEVELT has sound ideas on how to dissipate the present depression.

He made them the basis of his preelection pledges, when discussing the Hoover depression.

All he has got to do is to carry out those pledges,—

Reduce taxation;

Realize that this is an industrial nation, whose prosperity is based on industry;

Relieve industry of unnecessary burdens;

Encourage the expansion of industry, and the consequent increase of employment.

Increase individual income and the national income in the only way that can be permanently increased,—by increasing occupation and productive employment,—not by government largesse.

When I was asked by Congress to give my views on how to dispel the previous depression, I said "provide for the expenses of government by issuing notes rather than by increased taxation; because industry unburdened by taxation would speedily revive, and increased business would mean increased income for the government, without imposing added taxes.

"As prosperity returned, the increased government income would make possible the retiring of the notes."

My ideas then seemed to be entirely in accord with those of Mr. Roosevelt regarding the avoidance of burdensome taxation.

I was earnestly supporting Mr. Roosevelt then, because I believed in his program of taxation reduction.

I still believe in that same program of tax reduction and economy in government.

Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

(This newspaper invites its readers to write to the editor their suggestions as to what the President should do to dissipate the fear that is paralyzing industry and progress and imperilling the welfare of the nation.)

Asks 9 Billion As Senate Gets New Tax Bill

Gov. Earle Urges Great Spending Plan to Save Business

WASHINGTON, April 7—The Senate today prepared to debate the newly revised tax bill while urgent demands were being made upon President Roosevelt to launch a nine billion dollar spending program as the only means of dragging the nation out of its present depression.

Administration leaders were confident that the bill, which provides for a $5,330,000,000 revenue, will be passed by Saturday.

The measure was designed as a stimulant to business, the senate finance committee having eliminated all of the so-called punitive levies with a view toward releasing vast sums of foreign credit.

URGES 3 YEAR PLAN

The need of a nine billion-dollar spending program was stressed upon the President by Governor George R. Earle of Pennsylvania.

The governor suggested the program be spread over three years.

He warned that "if a big spending program is not continued, the American system of government faces chaotic collapse."

Earle said he favored the new tax bill as one step toward increasing business.

As debate on the measure neared the attention of senators backing the bill was drawn to a statement by Secretary of Commerce Roper that the recession partly has been caused by public fear of administration policies.

"We are going to cure some of that fear in the tax bill," a high ranking Democrat on the Senate finance committee said.

"FEAR" IS BLAMED

He referred to the statement made by Roper, quoting the secretary as saying:

"The nation's business is stalemated by the fear of fear and the fear of each other. When fear possesses a person everything becomes distorted in perspective and shelter is sought through inaction.

"Then follows criticism of everything and everybody. We need new to all work for recovery and abandon our fears."

RFC Maps Plans For New Loans To Business

Jones Will Consider All Applications Individually

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation advised business men today he would consider their loan applications individually.

"I have no fixed rules for handling applications. I consider each one on its own merits," Jones explained in discussing the broadened lending power to be conferred on the RFC by Congress.

The legislation will go to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature as soon as minor differences between the House and Senate versions are reconciled.

"The main thing this bill does for business men," Jones continued, "is to permit them to get loans from us for longer terms."

LONGER LOANS SEEN

Formerly RFC could make business loans only until 1945. The new measure removes that limitation, and loans for as long as 15 or 20 years may result. Jones said many utilities probably will become interested in this long-term money.

(As head of the RFC, Jones is taking personal charge of the new lending program and handling the details. His colleagues, new the board, of course, share in the final approval of loans.)

Asserting he always has been liberal in demands for collateral, Jones indicated he would not relax security requirements in making the new loans, although the pending bill virtually authorizes unsecured "character" loans.

MILLIONS AVAILABLE

Jones said he would accept any kind of collateral which would provide "reasonable assurance of repayment."

The RFC, Jones said, his potential loan powers of about $1,500,000,000. Jones, however, does not expect to lend more than a "few hundred millions." He is urging banks to fill as many of the loan applications as possible.

Sen. Davis Seen As TVA Prober

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—Senator Davis (R) of Pennsylvania was understood by informed persons today to be Vice-President Garner's next choice for membership of the congressional committee to investigate the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Garner selected Senators Capper of Kansas and Frazier of North Dakota yesterday to be the Republican members on the Senate's half of the 10-man group, but Capper said he was too busy to serve.

Garner had no assurance that appointment of Davis would make the committee complete for Frazier has not accepted as yet.

Capper and Frazier were chosen to replace Senators McNary (R) of Oregon and Borah (R) of Idaho, who had resigned immediately after their nominations.

Garner thus far has ignored Senator Bridges (R) of New Hampshire, an openly receptive candidate who has attacked TVA in Senate debate.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—It has just leaked out that shortly before Secretary Ickes let off his Chicago speech blasting Hitler, the State Department censored it.

The speech had gone over to the White House some days before and come back with an OK. It also had gone to the State Department, which at first evinced no opposition.

Then just a day before Ickes left for Chicago to deliver it, Undersecretary of State Welles came over to the Interior Department and discreetly suggested that Mr. Ickes tone it down. One passage which was objected to inferentially referred to Hitler as a despot.

Ickes accepted some of the suggestions but did not omit his indirect reference to Hitler as a despot.

Note—In the bosom of his official family, Cordell Hull's proverbial mild manner disappears when he talks about his Cabinet colleague, Harold Ickes. The Secretary of the Interior first got under Hull's skin when he delivered a transatlantic radio address on foreign affairs at the invitation of the British.

More recently the two have been on the outs over the shipment of helium to Germany, Ickes opposing the sale, Hull favoring it. Ickes has received thousands of letters supporting him.

JAPANESE UNPOPULARITY—Japanese prestige in Washington has declined to such extent that for the first time in many years, no photographs were taken of the Japanese Ambassador, with his family in native attire, beneath the cherry blossoms along the Tidal Basin.

Representative of a newsreel contacted attaches at the Japanese Embassy, and was told it was considered inadvisable to make the pictures "because of possible international complications."

Madame Saito and the two children did pay an unannounced visit to the Department of Agriculture's Amaryllis Show and were pointed out to photographers by an official of the department in charge of the exhibition. Said the blase lensman:

JEWISH MIGRATION—Secretary Hull's proposal to help care for Nazi-Fascist refugees has been welcomed courteously but with private skepticism by Latin-American diplomats. Since South America representing the chief potential immigration haven, their reaction is important.

Forty years ago, Latin-American diplomats point out, Baron Hirsch financed extensive Jewish migration to Canada and Argentina. However, it did not work out. Jewish immigrants, it was found, were not temperamentally suited to agriculture, regnalized on the land only the length of time required in their contracts, then moved to the cities.

Also James G. McDonald, League of Nations high commissioner for refugees, toured all through South America in 1935, trying to arrange openings for immigrants, but with little success.

Most Latin American governments have accepted Secretary Hull's invitation in deference to the good neighbor policy, but there is little confidence in the proposition.

RECONSTRUCTION BILL—Conversation overheard in one of the long queues of sightseers waiting to get into the Senate galleries the day the chamber voted on the Government Reorganization Bill:

First visitor: "What's this thing they are going to decide today?"

Second visitor: "The reconstruction bill—you know, to reconstruct the Democratic Party."

"Jean has been out with Mr. Freedley only three or four times," she said, "As a family we think of him as a most charming and gentlemanly young man."

The story of the engagement came from New York city, where Vincent is slated tomorrow night to play "Joan Peabotham" in Hasty Pudding's "So Proudly We Hail" for that city.

Jean, whose coming out party on Armistice Night was one of the features of Boston's social season and who was chosen "most charming debutante" by the Charlotte Cushman Club on March 26, was at the Garland School on Commonwealth avenue.

"Mr. Freedley is only one of a half dozen young men who come to the house to see my daughter," said Mrs. Cullen. "They are both nice young people, and rather young to be thinking of romance."

Re-Registration Bill Called Back

The Senate recalled today from Governor Hurley a bill calling for statewide re-registration of voters. Action was taken at the request of the governor, who desired more time to consider the measure. Crop-Saving Battle On as April Storm Hits 11 States

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP)—Snow fell on 11 states today, the second day of an April storm that brought out winter clothing and put many men to work clearing streets, repairing crippled service lines and fighting to save crops.

Forecaster J. R. Lloyd of the government weather bureau reported snow was falling in Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

The storm centered along a belt stretching from Colorado and Wyoming to New York and New England yesterday and piled up snow to depths of 17 inches.

FRUIT DAMAGED

Lloyd said the disturbance headed back north today but the snowfall would not equal that of yesterday, 9.2 inches in Chicago.

Unofficial estimates placed the damage to fruit crops and utilities' properties in Ohio at $1,000,000. Livestock warnings were posted near the east coast of Texas. One of that state's best fruit crops was damaged heavily in 25 degree temperatures.

Rain, sleet, dust, hail and tornado winds lashed at sections of the nation which escaped the snowstorm.

DEATH REPORTED

Heavy, wet snowdrifts three and four feet deep challenged highway crews in the Middle West. Snow plows, hastily retrieved from summer storage, opened most principal highways but many rural lanes were still choked.

The snowfall broke April records in many cities and was the deepest of the winter at some spots. Southwest Michigan reported 30 to 36 inches of snow.

One death was reported in South Dakota and fears were felt for a man missing near Scottsbluff, Neb. Wessington Springs, S. D., reported 17 inches of snow.

Mrs. Beatrice Dodier, 32, of Haverhill, today was serving a three-month sentence in Salem House of Correction for neglect of her children, but strangely enough much of her term will be taken up with the care of her six-month-old baby girl.

Under a law permitting children under 18 months to accompany a mother to jail, Mrs. Dodier was allowed to take the baby with her. In the last six months three other babies have shared the jail crib the Dodier child now occupies.

Birth Pictures Banned In Timilty's Campaign

Four pages of photographs showing the birth of a baby will be torn out of a pictorial weekly magazine before the issue is placed on sale tomorrow, Police Commissioner Timilty announced today.

The commissioner's move, revealed in his absence at headquarters by his stenographer, Augustine J. Gill, is the first in the city's latest drive to eliminate objectionable publications from the newsstands.

Simultaneously with Commissioner Timilty's campaign, police officials in Worcester, Springfield, Pittsfield and Providence, R. I., announced that a similar ban had been placed on the picture magazine.

Police Chief John L. Sullivan of Pittsfield declared the photographs would cause "every woman to stand aghast." He also said that the pictures would hurt the efforts of churches to "build up modesty and virtue."

The photographs are "stills" from a motion picture, "The Birth of a Baby," produced by the American Committee on Maternal Welfare under the supervision of several physicians.

On Tuesday Commissioner Timilty met with 50 publication distributors who pledged their co-operation in his campaign. The distributors, lauding Timilty's action, set up a board of three to censor all magazines coming into New England.

New Medical Society Head to Seek Progress

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—The new president of the American College of Physicians, William J. Kerr, M. D., of San Francisco, took office today and promised forward action on "medical situations arising in the country."

His remarks were taken to refer to the proposal of the association's retiring president, Dr. James H. Means, of Boston, last night to organize an opposition party within the American Medical Association and "bring to light leaders" to solve problems of medical care and proposed federal medical aid.

DIGEST ANYTHING

The College of Physicians, Dr. Kerr likened to "the Lambda bird." This, he said, is a creature with a very long neck and a gizzard that can digest any problem.

The president of the college, he said, is the "head of the Lambda bird on a long neck, which is continually swinging about and up and down to see what is going on."

"It is to be hoped," he added, "that the head may be able to keep out of the sand. It is to be hoped that the head may be alert to situations developing in the country."

"The behavior of the American Medical Association is political," Dr. Means asserted. "It is partisan behavior."

He declared spokesmen for the association "like Jove on high Olympus" were hurling "thunderbolts of wrath at all who differ with orthodox doctrine."

FISHBEIN ANSWERS

His accusation that the association's membership was "apathetic and inarticulate because it has no issue" brought an immediate reply from Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Fishbein said Dr. Means was "typical of those who stand outside and criticize without themselves putting a shoulder to the wheel to help."

Poverty Saves This Man's Life

Too Poor to Live, but Also to Kill Self

ATLANTA, April 7 (AP)—The paradox of a man who said he couldn't live because of lack of money and who failed for the same reason in an attempt to die appeared in DeKalb county police records today.

Patrolmen H. G. Tuggle and George D. Jackson reported that the man, a WPA night watchman, ran a tube into his car from the exhaust pipe and began inhaling fumes.

The motor stopped, however, because he had been unable to buy more than half a gallon of gasoline.

Revived at a hospital, he said he was "tired of seeing my wife and kids go hungry."

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP)—The White House said today President Roosevelt had accepted the resignation of C. F. Hosford, chairman of the National Bituminous Coal Commission.

Coolidge's Yacht Is Battered by Tropical Gale

Saltonstall, Cabot, Childs Couple Just Miss Storm

Her skipper, Captain Norman A. Ross, reported that last Friday, when 240 miles north-northeast of Miami, the squall struck the 100-foot craft without warning.

Captain Ross, formerly a prominent fishing skipper, was at the wheel and he was buried in canvas and rigging. Aboard, in addition to Captain Ross, was a crew of six. No injuries were reported.

A party of guests which had traveled as far south as Venezuela was landed at Miami before the schooner started north. It had included Richard Saltonstall and Paul C. Cabot, both of Boston, and Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Childs of Dedham.

State Committee Will Hear Stone

Judge Arthur P. Stone of Cambridge, under fire for his part in seeking the release of Howard W. Long, convicted ex-crime slayer, today awaited a call from the Legislative committee on rules, to give his story on the release.

Robert T. Bushnell, Judge Stone's counsel, told the committee his client was ready and willing to appear, after the committee had heard testimony from Judge William G. Rowe, in whose court at Brockton Long was released.

Big Army Defense Bill Being Pushed

Measure in House After Approval By Senators

WASHINGTON, April 7—The largest army appropriation bill in all peacetime history of the country was before the House today for passage in concurrence with the Senate.

There were indications the lower branch would speed the bill to early enactment.

It was adopted by the Senate while an Army Day parade was passing the Capitol. This parade, demonstrating the army's mechanized might, was reviewed by President Roosevelt.

The marching ranks included cavalry, infantry, artillery, machine gun units, tanks and modern anti-aircraft batteries. The parade took an hour and a half to pass.

SCAN MESSAGE

The army bill carried $490,000,000 for Uncle Sam's soldiers in the coming fiscal year, moulding a bitterly-contested $42,500,000 increase in funds for air and coast defense.

Proponents of the measure in the capital were paying particular attention today to the message sent President Roosevelt by Governor Robert E. Quinn of Rhode Island in which the latter urged approval of a plan to convert Block Island into a Gibraltar.

The Rhode Island chief executive warned that "industrial New England and financial New York" are at the mercy of enemy air-raiders.

GATEWAY CITED

Pointing out that the eastern coastline is the gateway to 80 per cent of the country's manufacturing area, Governor Quinn said the plan called for striking an outer line of defense by a line of fortifications from Montauk Point to Gay Head and an inner line of defenses from Point Judith to Sakonnet Point.

Senator Copeland (D) of New York, urging the additional funds for coastal defense said that aviators in the current Spanish war were "carefully avoiding cities protected by anti-aircraft batteries.

"All the world is preparing to defend their civil populations against enemy air raids—all but America," he said.

"It is time we did something about it."

Assistant Secretary of War Johnson, in an Army Day broadcast, warned European and Asiatic powers the armies of the United States and 20 other American republics stood ready to block any extension of their conquests to this hemisphere.

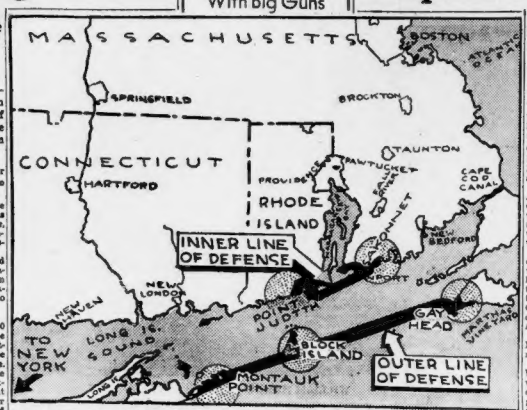
2 U. S. Battalions In Spain Wiped Out



Here's how the coast-line of vulnerable "financial New York and industrial New England" would look if the suggestion of Governor Robert E. Quinn of Rhode Island to President Roosevelt were acted upon favorably by the War Department. Realizing a sudden "undeclared war" on the United States would result in effectively crippling this section, Governor Quinn has suggested that an outer line of defense be constructed from Montauk Point to Gay Head, and an inner line from Point Judith to Sakonet Point. Both would be armed with 14 and 16-inch guns.

Los Angeles Leader Flees to France, Sees End of War

PERPIGNAN, France, at the Spanish Frontier, April 7 (AP)—A Californian who has acted as political commissar for the Washington and Lincoln Battalion of one of the Spanish government's international brigades reached France today with a story of death among his American comrades.

John G. Honeycombe, 37, of Los Angeles, said only a few hundred out of several thousand Americans who had fought since the beginning of the Spanish civil war as volunteers for the government were still alive.

Tattered and hungry, Honeycombe crossed the frontier after what he called "the Gandesa collapse," in which 500 Americans of the Washington and Lincoln Battalion were caught in the path of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's offensive.

ALMOST WIPED OUT

Gandesa fell last Saturday to the Insurgent push toward the Mediterranean.

The Californian said the old Washington Battalion was almost wiped out before Belchite, southeast of Zaragosa, where the Insurgents' march to the sea started, nearly four weeks ago.

Those that remained, he said, were incorporated in the Lincoln Battalion, and "Franco finished the job at Gandesa."

"I remember the last thing my wife said to me when I left her and my six-year-old kid in Los Angeles," Honeycombe mused. "You'll regret the day you left for Spain.' She was right."

As political commissar, Honeycombe, who said he once worked in the American Communist Party in California, was left in charge of the battalion when its commander was killed in Gandesa.

SEES WAR NEAR END

"This cannot last," he said. "I have seen more than 500 planes at one time bombing and strafing our lines. That man France has everything. The Spanish don't want to fight. They have nothing to fight with. They are finished."

Honeycombe used an American seaman's passport, dated several years ago, to cross the border into France from northeastern Spain.

"I guess they couldn't read," he commented.

He still wore a khaki uniform. Rips in the trousers showed shrapnel wounds he received in his last action at Belchite last month.

"They rushed us to the Gandesa sector from Belchite just in time to get the full force of the offensive," he related. "It was horrible. The whole Republican line—those that were left of us—just cracked and ran."

It took him four or five days of hitch-hiking and walking to reach the French frontier, Honeycombe said.

U. S. Naval Policy Blasted by Jap Admiral

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, April 7—Unleashing a verbal barrage against the United States, Rear Admiral Noda, Japanese naval spokesman, today predicted establishment of a Japanese "naval frontier" in the Western Pacific."

Noda's comments were made in the course of a discussion of American Secretary of State Cordell Hull's recent letter opposing a "stay-at-home" naval policy for the United States.

"It looks," said Noda, "as if the United States' defense lines are advancing to the west.

"On the other hand, Japan proposes to safeguard the Western Pacific ocean.

"If the United States opposes establishment of a Japanese naval frontier, we cannot but watch her policy with gravest concern. This is especially true as we fail to find any reason for the desire of the United States to retain the 5-5-3 naval ratio."

SEEKS PACIFIC CONTROL

The 5-5-3 ratio places the American and British navies on a par, with the Japanese navy limited to inferiority in number of vessels.

Asked to define the term "Western Pacific," the spokesman declined to specify any longitudinal or latitude limits, but declared:

"Our idea is to include in this term the area necessary for us to defend from the point of view of Japanese security.

"We are now assuming the position of guardian of the Western Pacific.

"The United States is not the guardian of the entire Pacific.

"It is imperative for Japan to control the Western Pacific. National security makes it necessary for us to secure our lines of communication, since we import most of our food and raw materials from overseas."

RAPS U. S. ACTION

Noda rapped the United States and Britain for invoking the escalator clause of the 1936 London Naval Treaty to permit London and Washington to construct battleships of more than 35,000 tons.

He branded a "mere transparent trick" the action of American and British in using Japan's refusal to reveal her naval construction plans as a reason for invoking the escalator clause.

Pianist Gregoire Is Back With Wife From Vienna

NEW YORK, April 7 (INS)—The night of March 11 in Vienna, already a footnote in the history of the world, was described today by Aldei Gregoire, American pianist, as he came fleeing from it with his wife on the Red Star liner Koenigstein, and saying he would go at once to Deerfield, Mass.

"We tried to get out of Vienna that night but we couldn't," he said. "As soon as Chancellor Schussnigg broadcast his resignation the Nazis and police began to work on the Jews. They thought my wife was a Jewess. She's a Viennese but she is a Catholic. But it held us up for ten days.

BUSINESSES LOOTED

"Signs about the plebiscite had been painted about the city and Jews were routed out of bed, given buckets of water, brushes and soap and made to scrub all signs off.

"One Jewish doctor we knew, a man more than 70 years old, had to use his bare hands to scrub off the paint.

"Then they began pillaging the Jewish stores. Young boys with rifles appeared. It was like the witchcraft days in Salem. All that was necessary to have a Jew thrown into jail was for someone to point at him and denounce him as a traitor.

35 AUSTRIANS ARRIVE

"People just disappeared and nobody knew what happened to them. In the Jewish district there were scores of suicides, but information about them was suppressed."

Also on the liner were 35 Jewish refugees from Austria.

Gregoire, whose home is in Deerfield, went to Austria two months ago to bring back his wife, who had returned to visit her father, an Austrian official.

"Less than 10 per cent of the people of Austria are Nazis," Gregoire continued. "But the German army took charge and took over the police."

Loyalist Power Plants Periled By Franco

Government Renews Pleas to France For Assistance

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border, April 7 (INS)—Loyalist Spain once again appealed to France for aid against advancing Insurgent troops today as the rebel forces gravely endangered the electric power supply of Catalonia and Barcelona, seat of the Spanish government.

The new Loyalist foreign minister, Juan Alvarez Del Vayo, voiced the new plea for help to the French ambassador to Barcelona, according to advices.

Meanwhile, spurred by the threat against the Catalan hydro-electric plant at Tremp, Barcelona authorities prepared to offer utmost resistance to the Insurgent drive up the Segre River valley.

TROOPS ADVANCE

Insurgent authorities at Salamanca announced the troops were continuing to advance toward the coast and that their battle line had been straightened out after a 24-hour delay.

One Rebel column, it was stated, occupied Erolas, near Tremp, while another was reported "mopping up" in captured Ballaguer.

Other Insurgent forces, reached Vallibona and with war planes and artillery units wiped out a government brigade attempting to hold up the Rebel drive toward Tortosa, a Salamanca announcement said.

WAIT EMERGENCY

Insurgent headquarters at Saragossa boasted the Rebel occupation of Balaguer brought the Insurgents within reach of the Catalan power plant at Tremp.

Fall of Balaguer gave the Insurgents command of positions controlling most of Catalonia's main power lines which feed the war industries furnishing Loyalists with vital war materials.

Leftists Riot as Blum Is Beaten on 'Deal' Plan

The clash, in which several were injured, came soon after the Senate finance committee, undaunted by the threat of a mass demonstration of Leftists, flatly rejected Blum's finance bill by a vote of 25 to 6.

Responding to the summons of Socialist extremists, Leftists moved on the Luxembourg palace, housing the Senate, late in the afternoon, while strong police and mobile guard reinforcements surrounded the building.

WINDOWS SMASHED

Communists, Socialists and Anarchists turned on the Fascist students when the latter strode into the demonstration, giving the Fascist salute.

This skirmish had just ended when Leftists attacked police in an attempt to break through into the senate grounds.

The demonstrators swung bottles and cafe chairs while the police used clubs. Leftists and police alike were knocked to the ground. Several were given first aid.

Windows of several cafes were smashed and chairs and tables were thrown into the street. A small group of demonstrators, singing the "Internationale," eluded police and approached the senate building, only to be dispersed by mobile guards.

Police and mobile guards were rushed to the palace as militant Socialists, Communists and Anarchists began moving toward the building in response to the call of the left wing of the premier's own Socialist party for a demonstration.

1000 POLICE ON DUTY

Nearly 1000 police and mobile guards were massed before the Senate. Steel-helmeted guards, with their shining carbines stacked nearby, cleaned out the Luxembourg palace gardens shortly before 6 p. m. (noon, E.S.T.). Several side streets were blocked off.

Inside the old building the aged, monocled Joseph Caillaux, chairman of the finance committee, who toppled the first Blum cabinet last June and is leading the opposition now, quietly read a terse communique announcing the committee's rejection of the Blum bill.

The more militant Socialist element refused to cancel the demonstration call in spite of an interior ministry order, which Blum approved.

CRISIS NEAR

The finance committee's action foreshadowed defeat for the premier in the Senate tomorrow—with the downfall of his cabinet—on his finance bill, for which he won grudging approval of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

The demonstration call was made in huge red posters with which Paris was plastered, signed by Marceau Pivert, militant leader of the Socialists left wing, which planned thereby to show the mass strength of the premier's popular support.

The police guard around the Senate was reinforced in view of the expected demonstration, but many senators said they would ask that the afternoon session be prolonged through the evening to show their scorn of the Leftists. The session was discussing minor details of a law on labor accidents.

STRIKES INCREASED

Pivert's group issued its call through the Socialist Federation of the Department of the Seie, regular organization of Socialists in the Paris region which the Pivert group controls.

Old guard Socialists call this group "the Reddest of us all."

The call appealed not only to Socialists but to "Communists, Anarchists and Republicans" to join.

The Senate Finance Committee, contrary to usual practice, rejected Blum's finance bill without formulating a new bill containing those parts the committee was able to accept.

Strikes, an important element in France's political turmoil, increased. Twelve hundred workers of a company manufacturing telephone equipment for government services joined the 45,000 workers already on strike. They wanted new collective contracts, a demand figuring in most of the strikes.

Czecho-Germans Vote on Hitler

PARIS, April 7 (INS)—A veritable secret plebiscite for independence of the 2,500,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia now is going on by mail, according to information received here today.

Corroborating word reaching the foreign office, the newspaper Paris-Midi said that the Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia are voting in the Austro-German plebiscite by letter.

This revelation said Paris-Midi, increased fears that Hitler will use the result as an excuse to move against Czechoslovakia as soon as result is known.

Launching of 2 Destroyers Set

A double launching of the United States destroyers Trippe and Mayrant will take place at noon on Saturday, May 14, at Boston Navy Yard, it was announced today. Ceremonies will begin at 11:30 o'clock, and United States Senator David I. Walsh will be the speaker.

The Trippe is named in honor of the late Lieut. John Trippe, who was appointed a midshipman in 1798, and fought at the battle of Tripoli. The destroyer is the third warship to bear the name. Miss Betty S. Trippe of New York, a decendant, will be the sponsor.

The Mayrant is named for Captain John Mayrant, who as a midshipman led the boarders in the famed Revolutionary War engagement between John Paul Jones' Bon Homme Richard and the Serapis. The keels of both destroyers were laid in April, 1937, at the Navy Yard.

Austria Jobless Cheer Hitler

SALZBURG, Austria, April 7 (AP)—Backed by a force of spade-armed workers, Adolf Hitler today set out to fight the battle of Austria's 600,000 unemployed.

Thousands of Austrian workers and peasants, including many jobless, cheered the Reichsfuehrer madly as he turned the first spadeful of earth for a new automobile superhighway extending Germany's road system across Austria through Vienna to the Hungarian border.

At Salzburg it will join the highway from Munich, through Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain retreat. (The Nazis have promised to end Austria's unemployment by such public works.)

Vienna Cardinal To Seek Lasting Nazi Peace

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

VIENNA, April 7—A "lasting peace" between Germany and Austria and the Holy See is the aim of Theodore Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Vienna, the prelate informed International News Service today.

Innitzer returned to Vienna after a conference with Pope Pius in which the Pontiff instructed him to present a virtual ultimatum to the German government demanding absolute freedom of worship for Catholics as the prerequisite basis for any new concordat.

Immediately after his arrival in Vienna, this correspondent forwarded to Cardinal Innitzer a request for a statement.

"There is tremendous work involved in bringing about final and satisfactory solution of all pending problems between the Reich and the Vatican.

"For the time being, His Eminence must be excused from making any premature statement. I may say, however, that His Eminence is greatly heartened by the interest indicated by American readers in his efforts toward peace, but he requests that he not be urged at the moment to make any definite statement."

Meanwhile, it was learned here that Cardinal Innitzer is endeavoring to reshape the long-standing concordat between Austria and the Vatican so it will become a satisfactory instrument for friendly relations between all of Germany and the Holy See.

Court Salaries Bill Wins O.K.

The legislative committee on public service today reported favorably a bill transferring control of salaries for Suffolk County court officers from the Boston mayor and council to the judiciary.

Two members of the committee dissented in the report. The measure was opposed by Mayor Tobin at a hearing Tuesday. The mayor said transfer of control would undoubtedly result in salary increases which the city could not afford at this time.

Those dissenting were Representatives E. Hayes Small of Truro and Adolph Johnson of Brockton.

Jury Opens Wide Probe Of Medfield Asylum

McSweeney, Superintendent Earl K. Holt of Medfield and a number of other state and institution officials to appear before the jury.

Among those called were Captain John F. Stroke, head of State detectives; Lieutenants Joseph Ferrard and Michael Flemming of State police, and Police Chief Coleman Hogan of Medfield.

Ferrari brought with him for presentation to the jury the iron-bound shoe box with which Frank Loprete killed two fellow inmates when he ran amok at the hospital two months ago.

The killing was disclosed by Buckley during a routine audit of the institution. It was this audit and similar financial checks at the Westboro and other state hospitals that led to the clash between him and Moynihan.

BLAST BY MOYNAHAN

Retraction of statements he made in connection with his inspection of the Westboro Hospital was demanded of Buckley by Moynihan in the latest blast issued during the controversy.

Named by Governor Hurley to supersede all other state agents in investigating conditions at the various hospitals, the administration and finance commission chairman declared that:

"I cannot condone wild and fantastic conclusions or distorted and exaggerated statements in public reports."

He referred to a report by accountants he engaged to conduct an audit at Westboro. In this summary, Buckley was accused of being incorrect and unfair in his conclusions. The outside auditors declared:

"In general, the report in question (Buckley's) may be characterized as undignified in its language, unfair in many of its criticisms and actually incorrect and misleading in many of its statements and conclusions."

They further accused the state auditor of either "intentionally distorting" facts or being unaware of proper auditing fundamentals.

BUCKLEY MAKES RETORT

To this, Buckley released a withering blast of denial, in which he said:

"We do not retract a single word, finding, conclusion, figure or recommendation we made on the report as rendered. It is unfair to the citizens of the state to have to engage in a name-calling contest of 'I did' and 'I didn't' when the facts as disclosed in my report have been supported and proven by the specially engaged firm of accountants.

"I am very happy to accept the challenge of the outside firm of accountants which discussed the training and qualifications of the men who prepared the report."

BURLEY GETS REPORT

Moynihan is a prepared reply der...red:

"The state auditor's quarrel is with the firm of certified public accountants who hooked over these records. Neither they nor I are candidates for public office.

"The reports on two hospitals (Westboro and Medfield) which have gone from this office to Governor Hurley today will show clearly that I do not condone laxity, inefficiency and carelessness as charged by the state auditor.

"In justice and fairness—and I am sure he wants to be fair, the state auditor ought to retract some of his statements."

650 Flee Lowell School Fire

LOWELL, April 7—More than 650 school children marched to safety today when fire broke out on the roof of the Abraham Lincoln school here today.

Following discovery of the fire, Principal Raymond A. Sullivan sounded the fire bell. Under the direction of 25 teachers, the pupils lined up and filed out with order and precision of an ordinary fire drill.

Six pieces of fire apparatus responded to the alarm, and extinguished the blaze in less than 10 minutes. Damage was limited to the roofing. The pupils returned to their classes.

He spent a restless night following the fast. He has suffered three breakdowns in the past three months.

Governor, Tobin Plead for More Boston Ships

Ask U. S. Maritime Board for Jump In Tonnage

Governor Hurley and Mayor Tobin appealed to the United States Maritime Commission sitting here today for more American merchant marine tonnage to increase Boston shipping.

Governor Hurley, represented by Frank McGowan who read his statement, said:

"Our present vessels are old and few in number as contrasted to the past maritime history of Massachusetts. This is still an outstanding maritime state and good steamship service here is essential.

"I think Boston is entitled to a fair share of the new maritime plan for increased American Merchant Marine. We are also entitled to a governmental regional office of the Maritime Commission."

Mayor Tobin said that Boston had been outstanding as an eastern seaport "for two centuries" and asked the commission to aid the Port Authority.

The hearing was presided over by Thomas W. Woodward of Washington, vice-chairman of the United States Maritime Commission.

Cruise of 19 Days Ends Here for 70

Back from a 19-day cruise, the last of the season, the Canadian National liner, Lady Rodney, docked at Commonwealth Pier today with 97 passengers, 70 of them from Boston.

Due to a strong wind in the harbor, the ship was delayed in the harbor for 25 minutes until a tug was able to bring her close to the pier.

Detroit Crippled By Car Strike

DETROIT, April 7 (AP)—Upwards of half a million Detroiters who normally use the city's street railway system sought other means of transportation today as an American Federation of Labor Union made effective a strike started because of a dispute over security rights.

At the rush hour this morning no street cars were operating and automobile traffic was moving slowly because of the appearance of thousands of additional motorists on the streets.

Bus lines were operating under police protection, taxicabs were doing a good business in years and thousands walked or thumbed rides.

The Detroit Street Railway, a municipal system, which also operates the bus lines, announced that all striking employes would be discharged if they were not back in the job at 2 p. m. today.

The other favored the pedestrians. Contrary to forecast, it was a bright, sunny day, although cold.

Clear Doctor In Death of 11

Verdict Says Victims Died of Lockjaw

ORLANDO, Fla., April 7—Dr. D. T. A. Neal, who gave injections to 13 of 14 persons who became ill after undergoing cancer treatment, resulting in 11 deaths, stood absolved of blame by a coroner's jury today.

Ten witnesses, including eight physicians, testified at the inquest at which time the jury decided that the 11 persons died "as a result of cancer serum rex 152 being injected hypodermically into their bodies, said serum proven to contain tetanus toxin in lethal quantities."

The jury said that tetanus (lockjaw) was the immediate cause of the deaths.

Police said there were no marks of violence on the body.

13,000 College Students Oppose U. S. Foreign War

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April (AP)—Announcing that more than 13,000 undergraduates of 44 colleges in 21 states opposed participation by the United States in foreign wars, the Brown University Daily Herald made public today a preliminary report of a nation-wide poll of 1,000,000 undergraduates.

"The student publication said 39 per cent of those whose votes had been tabulated favored world disarmament as the "most necessary" step to peace, while 25 per cent favored current United States defense armament.

Thirty-eight per cent urged that the United States remain neutral in time of war, the report added, while 24 per cent voted for this country's entrance into a revised League of Nations with broader powers.

Sixty-six per cent said they would fight if the United States were invaded, said the Herald announcement, while only 14 per cent declared they would not fight under any conditions.

Low Price Drive On At Kane's

HARRY KANE

Sale of More Goods Seen Pointing Way To Prosperity

Kane's Furniture Company will throw the force of $50,000,000 buying power possessed by the firm and the American Furniture Associates of which it is a member, into a "mighty drive to lower prices" starting tomorrow, announced Harry Kane, president.

Believing that lower prices will be the most effective means of starting up the wheels of business and industry, Mr. Kane revealed plans for a dramatic merchandising event designed to help lead the way to regain New England prosperity.

At a meeting of Kane executives held in the firm's Boston headquarters Mr. Kane stated:

"What this country needs is more goods sold, more goods bought, more factories humming and more men at work!

"The way to do this is to sell goods at lower prices than they were ever sold before in order to start them moving off the shelves, so as to force manufacture of new good and the consequent reopening of factories and re-employment of thousands of American workmen.

"We have worked for weeks to get lower prices for this plan — contacted manufacturers, bought sacrifice stocks for cash, won concessions from makers impossible unless this drive were of civic and social importance, marked prices in many cases far low wholesale cost and made sacrifices in our profits.

"All this has been done to offer unequalled savings to the people of New England and blow the lid off business inaction."

Kane Stores in Boston, Malden, Quincy, Waltham, Hyde Park, Framingham, Lynn, Lawrence, Cambridge, Brockton, Kane's warehouse store, and affiliated stores of the Rhode Island Supply Company in Providence, Pawtucket, Fall River and Newport will co-operate in the drive, Kane's officials stated.

Mexico to Pay Oil Owners

MEXICO CITY, April 7 (INS)—President Lazaro Cardenas today had set the machinery in motion for indemnification of the 17 American and British companies whose Mexican oil properties were expropriated.

He ordered Gustavo Espinosa Mireles, director of government petroleum exports, to put aside 20 per cent of the receipts from all oil sales abroad, the revenue thus derived to be placed in an indemnification fund.

Part of the proceeds from domestic sales of oil and its products will also go into the fund out of which the American and British companies are to be paid. Payments will begin as soon as negotiations fix the amounts each company is to receive, Cardenas announced.

Third Brass Firm Cuts Wages in Ct.

WATERBURY, Ct., April 7 (INS)—Following the lead of two other large brass companies, the Scovill Manufacturing Company today listed a wage reduction of five cents an hour in piece rates in addition to a 5 per cent wage cut.

Giving the "continued depressed condition affecting business" as its reason, the company said the cut is effective April 10.

Predict Defeat Of Child Labor Amendment

Foes Brand Bill 'Red Invasion of Homes In Warning

A smashing defeat by the Massachusetts Legislature was predicted today for the Federal child labor amendment.

This was the claim of the opposition who at hearings had for several days branded it as a Communistic movement to control all activities of persons under 18.

WARN OF PERIL

Warning was given that if passed by 36 states that the government would be given the right to invade homes, farms and industries to take over completely the education of youth.

Among opponents of the measure were President Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and William Cardinal O'Connell, who was represented by the Rev. Thomas R. Reynolds. The amendment has been passed by 28 states in the last 14 years.

The case of the opposition was handled by President Joseph R. Hamlen of the Massachusetts Constitutional Liberty League.

He warned that: "Our experience teaches us never again to surrender to Congress the power to invade the rights of our states in matters of local concern."

"TOO SWEEPING"

Father Reynold stated the bill was far "too sweeping" and that the authors of it were well known for their interest in Socialism.

Lowell pleaded that the country be not permitted to adopt the third great failure in its history. He named the other two as the Reconstruction act after the Civil War and the 18th Amendment.

2 Hurt in Call To Lynn Fire

A fireman and a private policeman were injured today as they responded to a two-alarm fire which destroyed a one-story wooden dine-and-dance place on Washington street, Lynn, near Ocean boulevard on Lynn beach.

Damage was estimated at $10,000 by fire officials who stated cause of the blaze was undetermined.

Residents in nearby houses were forced to the street in their nightclothes although the firemen successfully kept the flames from spreading.

The injured fireman, Charles Ord, struck his head against the wall of the doorway of the station as the ladder truck he was hanging to swung out of the structure in response to the first alarm.

Robert Pashby of the Lynn Protective Patrol suffered an injury to his right leg when he fell down an embankment near the fire.

$10,000 Bail Is Set In U. S. Mail Theft

Charged with stealing registered letters and securities from a United States mail truck in Newtonville, Andrew J. McDonald, 46, of Poquonnette avenue, Watertown, a post-office department driver for 14 years, was held in $10,000 bail today.

McDonald was arrested at his home last night. The theft occurred on January 15, it was said. U. S. Commissioner Howard W. Robbins continued the case until April 28.

Senators Study Red Activities On U.S. Ships

Many High Officials Will Testify at Public Hearings

WASHINGTON, April 7 (INS)—Substantial evidence of subversive activities in the merchant marine and naval auxiliary has been placed before a Senate investigating committee.

The evidence was being studied in preparation for the Senate investigation of "un-American" groups allegedly seeking control of the merchant marine and endangering the naval auxiliary. Sponsored by Senator Copeland (D.) of New York, the committee will begin open hearings soon.

A member of the committee who said he had seen some of the "evidence coming in" predicted privately today that maritime labor leaders, ship operators and possibly high-ranking naval officers would be summoned to testify.

Testimony before the commerce committee's inquiry into labor conditions in the merchant marine led Copeland to recommend the broad investigation of the alleged subversive activities on American-flag ships.

Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the U. S. Maritime Commission, now ambassador to the Court of St. James, told that committee labor conditions in the American merchant marine were deplorable.

Admiral William Leahy, chief of naval operations, another witness, said the pending $1,121,000,000 naval expansion program "necessitates" the enlistment of "dependable and loyal crews."

President Roosevelt's Own Story:

ARTICLE NO. 14
ON THE AAA (II)
A Comment of Franklin D. Roosevelt from His Forthcoming Books

(Editor's Note—The plight of the farmer in 1933 and the drafting of emergency legislation for farm relief were narrated yesterday. In the following note, never before published, from President Roosevelt's forthcoming books, the nature and workings of this first AAA are described in his own words.)

Title I of the statute of May 12, 1933, to rescue agriculture had to do with farm crop adjustment and the raising of agricultural purchasing power, and is known as the "Agricultural Adjustment Act." Title II dealt with easing the farm mortgage burden of farmers, and is known as the "Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933."

The policy of Title I of the Act was to establish and maintain such balance between the production and consumption of farm commodities, and such marketing conditions therefor, as would re-establish prices to farmers at a level that would give agricultural commodities a purchasing power, with respect to articles that farmers buy, equal to the purchasing power of all agricultural commodities in the "base period."

The "base period" in the case of all agricultural commodities except tobacco was fixed as the pre-war period, August, 1909-July, 1914. In the case of tobacco the base period was fixed as the post-war period, August, 1919-July, 1929. The tobacco-consuming habits of the entire world had so changed since the war, that the pre-war conditions of production and demand no longer represented accurately the 1933 conditions of the tobacco industry.

Keeping Farmer's Buying Power Up

This policy did not mean that farm prices should be raised to the same level necessarily in dollars as they were before the war, but rather that a farmer selling a certain volume of farm products in 1933 should be able, with the price he received for them, to buy the same volume of manufactured goods that he was able to buy in the period 1909-1914.

The aim was to place the farmer on the same comparable economic level with business and industry as existed during the pre-war period, to return to him his normal fair share of the national income, and, incidentally, to make him as good a customer for non-agricultural business as he was before the war.

The act also declared the policy of approaching such equality of purchasing power by a gradual rather than a precipitous correction of the existing inequalities, with due regard for current demand for consumption in domestic and foreign markets.

It was clear that no parity could be brought about in many of the commodities, whose carryover stocks were several times normal, until the huge surpluses had been reduced or eliminated. It was also evident that if the price of certain farm products were to be pushed up suddenly without adequate control of production, the result would only be to bring in new and additional production, which would create further burdensome surpluses.

Consumer Protection Also Provided For

A precipitous increase of price might even cause reduced consumption of farm commodities to a degree which would result in more harm than good to the farmers.

The act further declared the policy of protecting consumers' interests by readjusting farm production to such a level that the percentage of consumers' retail expenditures received by the farmer would not be above the percentage he received in the pre-war period. In this way the act sought to maintain for the consumer also the same proportionate price relationships as existed before the war.

In order to effectuate these various policies and purposes, the Congress granted two principal groups of powers to the secretary of agriculture; one dealing with voluntary production adjustment through contracts and benefit payments to farmers; and the other dealing with marketing agreements and licenses.

The first group of powers enabled the United States government to help farmers adjust their production in a way which would have been impossible for them acting as individuals without government assistance. The Secretary of Agriculture, functioning through the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, was authorized to give financial assistance by means of rental and benefit payments, by agreement or by any other voluntary method, to those farmers who would consent to adjust the amount of their crops.

The methods to be used were to be voluntary and not otherwise. Only the farmers who agreed voluntarily to adjust their production would receive the benefit payments. In this way the non-cooperative farmer, who had always been the obstacle to attempts by farmers in the past to control the amount of their total crops, was prevented from obtaining any advantage from refusal to cooperate.

16 Basic Crops Named in Bill

The Act originally provided for benefit payments for only seven basic agricultural commodities: wheat, cotton, corn, hogs, rice, tobacco and milk and its products. These commodities were selected because the United States produced an exportable surplus of nearly all of them, and also because changes in their price strongly influence all commodities.

Another reason for choosing these products was that each of them goes through some form of manufacturing process before it is ready for human consumption, with the result that their production and distribution could be more easily regulated during the course of processing than could those products which do not go through such a process.

(Editor's note—Nine other basic commodities were added later by amendments to the AAA — cattle, sugar beets and cane, peanuts, rye, flax, barley, grain sorghums and potatoes.)

The second group of powers enumerated in the Agricultural Adjustment Act, permitting the Secretary of Agriculture to enter into marketing agreements with processors, farmers' associations and others engaged in the handling of farm products, was also directed toward giving the farmer a more equal share of the national income. Marketing agreements were permitted for all agricultural products, and not merely for the seven basic ones, and the agreements were exempted from the provisions of the anti-trust laws of the United States.

They were intended not only to bring about a better price for the farmer, but to assist the various branches of the farming industry in general to increase their efficiency in production, processing and marketing so that better prices for the farmer would mean only a relatively small increase of cost to the consumer.

Processing Taxes Raise Farmers' Funds

To make effective the terms of marketing agreements, the Act authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to grant licenses to processors and distributors and others handling agricultural products or any competing commodities, and to revoke such licenses in the event of violation of the terms of the licenses.

In order to obtain the funds to pay benefits to the farmers who co-operate in adjusting the size of their crops, the Act provided for processing taxes to be levied upon the first domestic processing of the product.

The rate of the processing tax was to be fixed by the Secretary of Agriculture at the difference between the current average farm price for the particular commodity and the fair exchange value of the commodity. To prevent the tax being so high, however, as to cause reduced consumption of the commodity which would bring further surpluses, the Secretary was given discretion, after investigation and an opportunity for hearing, to fix the tax at a lower rate.

With the funds derived from the tax, benefit payments could be made by the government to farmers who were willing to co-operate in the program of adjusting production. In this way they received benefit payments plus the increased market price, while the non-cooperators received only the increased market price.

The machinery of government was used to assist farmers who could not individually assist themselves. The Act sought to prevent the small non-co-operating minority from doing any harm to the co-operating majority.

How Crop Control Provisions Worked

The benefit payments made a direct and continuing contribution to the farmers' income. It was a recognition of the principle that this large economic group, performing an essential function for society, is entitled to a fair share in the national income.

With respect to cotton, special steps were taken because the 1933 crop had already been planted and special emergency measures were necessary. With respect to the other basic commodities, plans were also adopted as quickly as possible by the Secretary of Agriculture after conference with farm leaders and others, to carry out the purposes of the Act.

The various plans differed in detail, but the essentials were the same, viz., (1) a voluntary agreement on the part of the farmer to adjust his production in accordance with individual allotments, (2) payment of benefits by the government to those who signed such agreements, (3) the levying of a tax on the first processing to the particular product to raise funds for the payment of these benefits, (4) decentralization of administration, (5) determination of the amounts to be allotted to each county, locality, or individual farmer tob emade in co-operation with local, county or district production control associations and local allotment committees.

The President details how the agricultural program was made self-supporting, the scope and effects of its administration, and the efforts made to the AAA to the constitutional pattern indicated by the Supreme Court.

Gen. Johnson Says:

DEBT PLAN FALSE
Vanishing Not Paying

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

NEW YORK CITY, April 7—The next Washington miracle with arithmetic is the startling discovery that, although we have been running into debt for seven years and borrowing by billions—presto! We have no debt at all.

Hugh S. Johnson

The argument is that if a commercial corporation borrows a million dollars and buys a million dollar factory—while it writes the million dollar debt down on its balance sheet as such—it also writes its new million dollar plant down as an asset. One cancels out the other and so there is no "net" debt.

But when the Government borrows a million dollars to build a dam across Skunk Creek, it writes down that debt but not the dam and so shows a million dollars in the red where a private corporation would show no debt at all. If, then the Government would merely use accepted business bookkeeping, instead of showing a forty billion dollar debt which has all of business jittery, we would be free of debt.

* * *

Furthermore, the government has vast possessions, battleships, forts, reasers, national parks, great public buildings, millions of acres of land, a lot of money owing to it from private debtors. If all these were set up on its books as assets tomorrow, instead of a debt there would be a colossal credit—maybe as much as fifty billions.

The merry conclusion should be reached with a "hey-nonny-nonny and a hot-cha-cha." With all our extravagant spending we don't spend half enough! We should get busy dishing out the billions twice as generously.

* * *

What's the matter with it? Property is no asset unless it earns or is salable. Otherwise it is just the reverse of an asset. It is a liability. It does not provide money to offset the debt. It requires more money for upkeep and increases debt.

This is true of nearly all government property. Uncle Sam couldn't sell a battleship to pay off the First and Old Bank of Detroit and the bank couldn't foreclose. What would a bank do with a battleship? On the contrary every battleship is an expense account and so is nearly every other piece of federal property—like Yosemite Park.

That is equally true in business. Many companies carry millions of dollars in bricks and mortar against fewer millions of debt—and are dismally busted. Their assets don't earn. The railroads are a perfect example.

* * *

It isn't the number of cyphers on the debt that make it bad and dangerous. It is the difficulty of paying installments when due and the growing burden of colossal charges in interest and hence in terribly burdensome taxes that break down confidence and reduce buying power because, as the President once said:

"Taxes are paid in the sweat of every man who labors."

It is true that the government has some liquid assets like well-secured interest-bearing loans that could be written off against the gross figure in considering the debt. But it also has contingent liabilities and commitments in even greater amount.

* * *

There is nothing new about this fake—like a government property cancels government debt. It was the precise idea that busted half a world in the Mississippi and South Sea Bubbles.

We can't "run up in our writin' desk" and escape our debt and money problem by juggling figures in a balance sheet. Based on the whole of financial history our debt is dangerously expanded and should be reduced by economy and prudent government.

Sheriff, Frome Clash on Texas Slayings

Police Hint Desert Revenge; 'Robbery' Says Father

EL PASO, Tex., April 7—Sheriff Chris P. Fox, directing the nation-wide hunt for the desert torture slayers of two society women, and Weston G. Frome, California businessman and husband and father of the two victims, were reported definitely at odds today.

While Frome, in a statement, publicly voiced appreciation of the work of law enforcement agencies, he reiterated his belief that the motive behind the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Weston G. Frome, 46, and his daughter, Nancy, 23, was robbery.

Frome's statement was made in the face of the belief expressed by Sheriff Fox that revenge or hatred, and not robbery, led to the slaying of the two women who were tortured, beaten to death and their partially disrobed bodies left in the desert underbrush late Sunday. Their baggage and clothing were missing and their car was found some 25 miles away.

FUNERAL TODAY

Frome talked to newspapermen at the California home to which he had taken the bodies of the two women. Funeral services were to be held today.

Brushing aside rumors that Nancy had been married, he said: "Nancy never was married. She was engaged at one time to a young doctor, but she broke the engagement a year ago."

Acting on the request of Sheriff Fox, Berkeley authorities sought a male student of the University of California who registered from Texas. Sheriff Fox, who asked that the student be taken into custody for questioning, said the student had a "bad record." He refused to reveal the youth's name, however.

SUSPECT CLEARED

Simultaneously with Sheriff Fox's announcement, authorities at Rankin, Tex., said that to all indications the suspect they were holding, Jack Ferguson, 20, a Houston, Tex., steelworker, had no connection with the crime.

Rankin officers made their announcement following the arrival of Mrs. Harold White of El Paso, a friend of the Fromes, who viewed the clothing brought recently by two of the two slain women and declared that it did not belong to them.

Ferguson had been apprehended as he sought to sell the clothing along with an overnight bag.

Sisters Recover After Fire Rescue

Two Roxbury sisters today recovered from smoke inhalation after the elder one led her sister to safety when flames swept their home on Dudley street.

'Paul Reveres' Off on Ride of 1938

Crowds Cheer N. E. Patriots on Their Way to Capital

MODERN "PAUL REVERES" on freedom tour. Just before "Paul Revere" special left South Station, this picture was made. These men and women are among the leaders in New England's fight to halt the Roosevelt reorganization bill in Congress. They were armed with thousands of petitions that will be presented to congressmen. "Stop That Dictator Bill" was one of the many slogans selected by the New Deal law opponents. The train arrived in Washington on time and soon the anti-dictator bill group were at work on their mission.

HELPING THE CAUSE. The youngest delegate from Massachusetts on the New Deal "dictator" law hailing train was Ruth Slater of Dorchester.

CAMBRIDGE IN THE FIGHT. Mrs. Nora T. Longfield and Mrs. Anne Morin, both from across the Charles river were seated on the "Paul Revere" special when they were photographed. They felt like thousands of others that the Roosevelt reorganization bill should be halted.

The signatures were those of local voters.

Dictator Measure Wins in First Test

House Refuses to Kill Bill by Vote of 191 to 169

NO ROLL CALL

Some members waved to the press gallery as they went through. Representative Biermann (D.) of Iowa came into the chamber on crutches to vote against the O'Connor motion.

So great was the confusion following announcement of the vote that Representative Crawford (R.) of Michigan had to shout through cupped hands in an attempt to address the chair.

He finally asked if there was any "possible way" to obtain a roll call vote on O'Connor's motion.

Representative McCormack (D.) of Massachusetts, who was presiding, said there was none.

BLOCK AMENDMENTS

Shouts of "vote, vote," mingled with applause when O'Connor went down into the well of the chamber to make his proposal.

In so doing, he blocked, at least for the time being, a series of amendments which the special reorganization committee was forced to write on the floor after a parliamentary objection by Representative Taber (R.) of New York, had been sustained.

"Mr. Chairman," O'Connor said, "in offering my motion to strike the enacting clause from the bill, I am taking the step which I believe the people of this country desire—and at this time."

He said every letter and telegram coming to him from over the nation says:

"No compromise, no amendments will cure the bill."

"Those responsible for bringing this bill in here have realized for some time," he declared, "that they have a bear by the tail. We are trying to help them let go."

RED PAPER FOR BILL

"Let us see from where the strangest urge for this bill comes.

"I hold in my hand two issues of the Daily Worker, the organ of the Communist party. They violently support the bill and denounce the opponents as Tories and Fascists who are fighting liberalism."

He repeated what members already had heard once before, that Earl Browder, the "chief and leader" of the Communists and their candidate for president, just back from Russia, "has been actively lobbying in the offices of members to obtain support for this bill."

The New York Irishman said he could not figure out why the Communists were for the bill and what "trick" they were playing in denouncing the opponents as Fascists.

"The country," he said, "believes Fascism is with us, and that this bill is a further step in that direction. The people fear this bill will serve as an escalator to a dictatorship."

But the Communists are not the only friends of the bill, he added.

WPA DRIVE FOR BILL

He predicted members would be flooded with "propaganda" from WPA workers in the next few days.

"The telephone wires are deluged from all over the nation," O'Connor asserted, "by national committeemen, state chairmen and county chairmen, calling the members to 'get behind the President' on this bill."

Before O'Connor submitted his motion, the House agreed that in the event of its defeat it would consider the measure under procedure which would put no limitation on the number of amendments that could be offered.

Immediately after the House convened, Representative Stack (D.) of Pennsylvania, a foe of the bill, said he "understood our friend Charley West is around the Capitol today." West is liaison man between the White House and Congress.

CROWDS JAM GALLERIES

"I don't know what he's doing," Stack asserted in his Irish brogue, "but I hope he isn't doing what they accuse me of doing to Jack Kelly—giving him a Mickey Finn."

He did not identify Kelly.

Space wasnt sucha premium in the galleries that the one usually reserved for guests of the President was opened to spectators.

Lines formed outside the gallery entrances.

Both on the floor and in the galleries the crowd was so large that Representative McCormack had to admonish members and onlookers several times to refrain from conversation.

Senator Byrd (D.) of Virginia, who had been a leading foe of the reorganization program in his own chamber, came over and stood behind Taber in the east [illegible] speeches.

PARLIAMENTARY ISSUE

Representative Taber objected to [illegible] that it violated House rules by re-enacting a provision of an old reorganization bill which would allow the President to transfer appropriations to a new agency in the event another government agency were discontinued.

Taber said that only the House appropriations committee could authorize such a transfer, whereas the bill was handled by a special reorganization committee.

While Taber was explaining his move, Majority Leader Rayburn of Texas; Representative Vinson (D.) of Kentucky, member of the House reorganization committee, and the House parliamentarian assembled at the Speaker's desk.

There was a careful study of parliamentary precedents.

With an agreement reached that both sides should have five minutes to argue O'Connor's motion, the New Yorkers urged members not to "compromise with principle."

"Now is the time to strike," he said. "This is the hour. "We who believe in the great principle involved, have nothing to lose. If we do, we'll still be fighting."

WARNING AFFLAUDED

He said the cry against the bill came from all churches, from colleges, labor, veterans, leaders of business and politics, irrespective of class or party. He added:

"They fear the further breaking down of the equality of the three branches of government, which our forefathers worked out deliberately, and may I say, reluctantly, because if some of them had had their way, the legislative branch would have predominated, as it does in England today, where democracy continues intact."

A burst of applause rattled through the visitors' galleries when O'Connor said the people of the country feared the bill was "an escalator toward a dictatorship."

Representative McCormack warned the galleries such demonstrations violated House rules and would not be permitted.

After that the House quieted to catch O'Connor's words. Three hundred and ten of the 435 House members were in the chamber to hear him.

SCORES O'CONNOR

Rebel yells met Representative Warren (D.) of North Carolina when he walked down an aisle to answer O'Connor.

"By this motion," he said, "the gentleman from New York, Mr. O'Connor, is endeavoring to foist on the House of Representatives some o fthe same ruthless methods he has attempted in the past."

He said opponents had wanted full debate and had had it—more than 20 hours of it.

"The opposition said it wanted to amend the bill," he continued. "This privilege they also will have. But the gentleman from New York seeks by his motion to deny it to you."

Warren said the charge had been made on the radio and repeated today by insinuation that if the bill oes to conference with the Senate, there is some "nefarious or sinister scheme in the minds of the conferees."

WON'T SELL OUT

"In the parlance of the gutter, if you please," Warren shouted, "the gentleman from New York insinuates that the House conferees would sell out the House.

"If the gentleman intimates that I would do so, I do not speak his language or think his thoughts. I have never been trained to stoop to conquer."

O'Connor used all but one and one-half minutes of his allotted 15 minutes and called on Representative Pettengill (D.) of Indiana, another bitter opponent of the bill, to finish the demands for adoption of his motion.

"PUT MEN BACK TO WORK"

Pettengill said the "wisest thing" the House could do would be to approve O'Connor's motion and kill the bill.

"The only thing facing the country today is the necessity to put men back to work," he shouted. "This bill doesn't do that."

Representative Hook (D) of Michigan interrupted the Indianan by shouting:

"What bill did you ever vote for that would do that?"

Pettengill did not reply.

The Indianan concluded by saying that the nation "has gotten along without this bill" for many years "and a few months more won't hurt."

Fr. Coughlin Wires Reveres

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Following arrival of the "Paul Revere" train from Massachusetts, the following telegram was received by the delegation from Rev. Charles E. Coughlin:

"Thank God, you arrived with many Paul Reveres, who are in Washington today to duplicate the history which made each name as Lexington and Concord Immortal.

"It will be necessary to ride over many rough roads to reach your destiny. However, carry on in the name of liberty."

See New Tax Bill As Business Aid

WASHINGTON, April 7 (INS)—Passage of the new tax reform bill will remove some of the fear in the country and restore confidence lost by some of the people in their government on Congress, Sen. Pat Harrison (D.) of Mississippi told the Senate today in asking swift enactment of the measure.

Evidencing close co-operation between Republican forces with the Democratic majority in an effort to expedite passage of the "national recovery bill," Senator Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan paid a glowing tribute to Harrison's leadership.

"Whatever credit there is in preparation of this bill," Vandenberg said, "should go to the chairman of the committee for his leadership on this bill."

Harrison's theme was revision of existing tax laws, with a view to unfreezing capital now static because of restrictive taxation.

the heavy industries would feel the full stimulation of buying orders.

Mr. Roosevelt has outlined his relief ideas to recent callers, among them Gov. George H. Earle (D.) of Pennsylvania, who lunched yesterday at the White House.

WARNS AID IS VITAL

Earle left the President's office advocating a spending program of $3,000,000,000 a year for the next three years to be applied to low cost housing, highway construction, flood control, soil erosion and rural electrification.

The Governor warned from the White House steps that unless federal pump priming were continued the very foundations of the government were threatened, but that with a business recovery of magnitude would result.

At the White House, no official comment was forthcoming on the President's plans with respect to industrial stimulation. It was obvious, however, that Roosevelt aides were sitting tight in the face of a definite "leak" on the subject.

TO STRESS HOUSING

It was understood the President in particular will press his low cost housing and slum clearance program if the new plan is accepted. This, he feels, would have the threefold effect of creating widespread employment, stimulating the heavy goods industries and providing decent housing for what he has described as the nation's "ill-housed, ill-clothed and ill-fed."

Senator Carter Glass (D.) of Virginia, chairman of the appropriations committee, predicted President Roosevelt will ask Congress next week to appropriate $1,250,000,000 or $1,500,000,000 for WPA relief expenditures during the next fiscal year.

Glass characterized an allotment of $1,250,000,000 for relief purposes as a "starter."

Treadway Gives G.O.P. 1940 Cry

NEW YORK, April 7 (INS)—The opening gun of the 1940 Republican campaign boomed today as Congressman Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts blamed President Roosevelt's tax measures and tariff policies for the present depression.

In a message read to the National Affairs Committee of the Women's Republican Club here, Congressman Treadway said:

"Both matters—repressive taxation and ruinous reciprocity—will be major issues in the coming campaign.

"As Republicans we should welcome the chance to go before the electorate on these issues.

"Of course, they are but part of what is going to be the one big issue of the campaign, namely, the Franklin D. Roosevelt depression."

Because he was unable to attend, Treadway's speech was read by Mrs. Henry R. Caraway, president.

Sylvia Sidney Buys 114 Acres to Farm

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—Sylvia Sidney is the latest to forsake Manhattan's canyons for the farm lands.

The screen star disclosed she had bought a 114-acre farm in Hunterdon County, N. J. She said she would live on it with her mother [illegible] her stage and screen work permits.

Special was met by Congressman William Lemke, Union party presidential candidate in the last election, and National American Legion Commander Daniel J. Doherty of Woburn.

Doherty, who is in Washington fighting the bill on behalf of the veterans, was confident it would be beaten.

At noon, the delegation met with Senators Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., and David I. Walsh, to whom they presented their objections to the bill.

The campaign revealed its nation-wide proportions when special trains from Illinois and several other states arrived at the capital bearing protesters against the measure.

"KILL THAT BILL"

All had one message to deliver to their congressmen. It was:

"Stop the bill for good and all, amended or otherwise."

A number of organizations combined to fight the measure through a march on Washington. Among them were the National Defenders, Inc., the Committee for the Preservation of America, the Republican Builders, Inc., and the New York Board of Trade.

Summarizing the spirit of the various organizations was a statement by L. M. Bailey, national organizer of the Defenders.

"Our group has read the statement of the President about the 'purchasable' Senate and the Administration statement that the hundreds of thousands of telegrams and telephone calls to congressmen against the reorganization bill were just propaganda," he said.

"WE, THE PEOPLE"

"We intend to seek our individual Congressmen and tell them:

"We are not propaganda. We are people—people from your home districts, and if you want to remain in Congress we demand that you be CONGRESSMEN, and not rubber stamps; that you remain and hold the constitutional powers of congressmen that you have delegated to others."

More than 2000 enthusiastic well-wishers gathered at the station to express their opposition to the bill.

FR. COUGHLIN WIRES

Among the leaders of the modern Paul Reveres were Albert P. McCulloch of Worcester, chairman of the "Paul Reveres of 1938," and Miss Hayes, president of the Economic Security League of New England.

Shortly before the train left, Hayes received a telegram from Father Charles E. Coughlin, noted "radio priest," who wired encouragement and wished the group success in its mission.

Members of the local group voted that a committee be appointed to wait upon "Jimmy" Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, and arrange to have Mrs. Auerhamer, present him with a duplicate list of the 100,000 names opposing the pending legislation.

Miss Jeannette Chisholm, former assistant district attorney of Middlesex County is acting as counsel for the invading committee.

Adding to the general opposition to the "dictator" measure was the wired protest by pastors of 35 Lutheran churches in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The ministers, attending a meeting of the Pittsburgh conference of the Lutheran Church of the Missouri Synod, unanimously voted to send the following telegram to the district's congressmen:

"We, 25 members of the Pittsburgh General Conference of the Lutheran Church, heretofore voice our protest against the reorganization bill, especially in regard to its ecclesiastical clauses and paragraphs as it is now before the United States House of Representatives and urge your authority to cast your vote against it."

Crash Kills Man In Hingham

One man was killed and one seriously hurt today when their automobiles crashed head-on on a curve on Lincoln street, Hingham near the police station.

Richard J. O'Brien, 35, of Hampden Circle, Hull, died at Cohasset Hospital four hours after he had been admitted. His chest had been punctured by the broken steering post of the car. His skull was fractured.

Expected to recover at the same hospital was George E. Willis, 40, of Jerome street, West Medford.

Officer Oscar Beck and Morris Evans worked 30 minutes to extricate the victims, pinned in the wreckage by the steering wheels.

Rumania's Envoy Denies Jewish War

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—Radu Irimescu, new Rumanian minister to the United States, denied today anti-Semitism was practiced in his country. He arrived on the Italian liner, Saturnia.

The minister was accompanied by his American wife, the former Henrietta Moench of Buffalo, N. Y. Irimescu said there was a feeling in Rumania that there will be no war in Europe.

CHAPTER 16

"At what time does the investigation open?" asked Major Allenby.

"Half-past nine."

Allenby glanced at his wrist watch. "Hmm. Well, there's still a chance to pull the case out of the fire—had an inspiration not long ago. I can't quite admit that Miss Fortier intended to steal a belt last night."

Tyson made impatient noises. "Don't you? I believe Boyd is right. She intended to murder Grafton but she must have seen Lunt in the hall. If a girl is capable of planning one murder, to my mind she's capable of executing another."

"That's entirely possible," Allenby admitted.

Tyson, frowning, said "Well, Major, what is this inspiration of yours?"

In a few words the spare, gray haired figure explained, then shortly after went hurrying off to Freebooter's Hall. In its semi-subterranean game room he made divers arrangements.

These completed, he joined the household at breakfast as if he had just come from his room. This dull morning it seemed was doing little to ease a palpable tension or to cheer the downcast mien of his fellow guests.

A covert but careful survey of the faces gathered around the table told him less than nothing; certainly somebody here was a superlative actor. His chewed asparagus on his fork, when down from upstairs drifted Peter's dreary weeping.

ALLENBY'S SURPRISE

What a wretched piece of luck that in her groping, blundering entrance Judy had disarranged the belt and so flicked open the set camera's shutter. But occurrence of the unexpected was one of the hazards of his profession.

With raised voice he said, "incidentally, you might be interested to learn that someone broke into the library and stole that swimming suit belt from the evidence table last night."

There was a sudden craning of necks and scraping of feet.

"Belt?" "Stole?" "What belt?"

Not too promptly Allenby satisfied their curiosity, then added, "The police are very glad of it and so am I."

"What do you mean?" Terry James demanded, the skin on his rather pudgy face tightening.

A dramatic pause preluded Allenby's reply. "The person who stole that belt was automatically photographed. The police are developing the plate at this moment."

Clip the Camera Clues

Allenby smiled, conscious of the penetrating attention of Sir George and Townley Ward. As for Gail, she looked up uneasily from her hardly tasted melon, while Kathleen uttered a mocking little cry.

"But Em not fooling, Miss Pendleton. The thief tripped a trigger rigged to the belt. I arranged such a trap for the police."

"Oh, don't be dull," Stanley Gibbons rudely objected. "Everyone knows you can't take a photo in complete dark."

"Of course not," Sir George agreed. "Come, come, Major, is this not-so-clever yarn intended to distract us?"

"I don't believe it's possible," Ward declared with an esoteric wink at Cora Sue. "Though you can develop a lot of interesting results in a dark room."

Allenby, however, merely lighted his pipe.

"I have heard of film sensitive enough to take a picture in very dim light," Grafton admitted, "but it requires a long exposure, and what thief is obliging enough to stand still?"

"You know right well there'd have to be light of some kind; enough, anyhow, to alarm your suspect!" Terry snapped.

Ward said shortly, "I don't see what all this is driving at. It's just nonsense."

"In about half an hour. Incidentally, there's time enough to prove my assertion. I don't suppose you'd be interested, though."

"Oh, goody! Let's all get our picture taken in the dark!" Cora Sue prattled. "Think how thrillin' and creepy it would be."

"IT'S ALL BLUFF"

"Don't listen to him," Kathleen raised a sardonic brow. "I'm on Major's only trying to take our mind off the—the rolling motion."

"No, I'm quite serious," Allenby said pleasantly.

"We've nothing to do until the police arrive, so if you'll all come down to the game room I'll try to prove my point for the benefit of you doubting Thomases."

"Of course, if anyone doesn't want to go down there, he doesn't have to. Only—" he lingered on the word an appreciable second—"there might be an unpleasant interpretation put on his reluctance."

"Oh, come along," Cora Sue sprang up. "Ah'm no blue Ah could cry. Ah declare it will be grand fun!"

Gail hesitated. "Oh, must we do this?" I—I hardly slept at all last night."

"Of course it is." Townley Ward put down his coffee cup. "Bet you twenty dollars, Major, you can't take a picture in the dark room clean, didn't you read about this in some detective story?"

Terry James continued to look annoyed.

"If the thing is a success, Major, you're sure going the guilty person a fine chance to cover up. I'll bet you haven't got any picture at all. Well, come on folks, this way to the big show!" And he led the way below.

Presently they all gathered in a long bare room, from which a ping-pong table had been removed, and grouped themselves before the fireplace.

Creepy, summoned at Allenby's insistence, lingered near the door, the whites of his eyes showing up sharply. Roger Allenby stood facing them, arranging the focus of an expensive 3¼x4¼ camera.

"Now here," he indicated one of two black boxes he had placed on low tables facing the group, "is a sunlight box—completely light-proof. I have placed across the front of it an Ilford infra red filter."

A CHARMED GROUP

"Infra red?" demanded Sir George in a suddenly serious tone

"Yes. It's a special glass filter designed to obstruct the passage of all light except infra red rays."

"Now inside each of these boxes are fixed two super photoflash bulbs. These wires leading to the camera permit the bulbs to be set off at that precise moment at which the shutter opens.

His had his audience's attention now all right. They were staring at him curiously and feet no longer scuffled on the game room's well polished tile floor.

Valuable and Safe Remedy For Heart

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

NOTHING is more fascinating for a doctor than to read old medical literature. The ancient beliefs are interesting to us who regard ourselves as "advanced." Only a century ago medical knowledge was sadly diluted by being mixed with a great deal of superstition.

Some of those beliefs, unknown to those who held them, had scientific background. But perhaps the real facts were not determined for centuries. As an example, let me tell you the story of digitalis.

Digitalis is a drug long used in the treatment of certain heart disorders. It has given relief to many who suffer from weak hearts and other disturbances of the blood system. Undoubtedly it has saved the lives of thousands.

In the middle of the 18th century there lived those who were called "witches" and "herb women." Some of them used a concoction of leaves for the relief of dropsy. Sometimes this helped to reduce the swelling, but too often it caused death.

One well known herb woman in England had used these leaves with remarkable success. News of her performances reached the ears of William Withering, an eminent physician. He submitted the matter to various tests.

DOCTORS DOUBTFUL

In 1785, Withering announced the result of his experiments, but the medical profession hesitated to accept his statements. With our present knowledge of digitalis one can readily understand why these doctors were doubtful. But, we have learned that extracts made from the leaves of the plant vary in strength and its successful use is only possible when a standardized preparation is used. The crudely-prepared drug of a century ago could easily be administered in poisonous doses. This explains the many fatal results in olden times.

Modern scientific research has perfected its preparation so that in the hands of a modern physician it is a safe and extremely valuable remedy. Every precaution is taken to guard against imperfections.

Digitalis strengthens the contractions of the heart. It makes that organ pump more strongly and more efficiently.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Eleventh-Hour Rejuvenation

THOUGH YOU MAY think there's never a let-up in your round of beauty care, your face often has an astoundingly unpleasant habit of staging a let-down. And that at a time when you'd part with treasure to look radiantly fresh. Stars like Claudette Colbert must have their own ways of retrieving a glamour that might think to backslide . . . yours might well be the strawberry cream mask Arline Gould describes today.

Mrs. Beeckman on Manners

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I. I am the sister of a bride-to-be. Will you kindly tell me what the proper thing to say to the groom's mother would be when she is in the receiving line?

I know that I should kiss the bride and wish her every happiness, then congratulate the groom, and, of course, I know what to say to my own mother. But the groom's mother and father, whom I don't know very well, offer me a problem.

1—Although it is the bride's family who plan and pay for the wedding, it will be natural for you to say something about the charm of the wedding to the groom's mother and father. "Don't you think that we should be proud of our bride and groom? I think they are a very handsome pair, don't you?" (This said in not too serious a manner, but meant seriously, nevertheless!)

Another pleasant thing to say to the groom's mother and father is "I can't tell you how happy I am to see you both today. George had told us so many wonderful things about you both that we all feel that we know you very well, even though we have seen you so few times.

"We hope now that we will have the happiness of seeing more of you."

Also, just as the bride's family like to be told how "lovely the bride looks," so the groom's mother and father like to be told how "handsome and happy" the groom looks!

Strawberry Cream Mask Leaves Skin Radiantly Fresh

By ARLINE GOULD

YOU MAY agree with men of the world that a woman can be at her most enchanting when she's thirty . . . but if you're at this age point, in the secrecy of your own mind you'll admit that it's twice the work it was at twenty to look ravishing. Though the results are worth it. Tremendously!

If you haven't discovered what eleventh-hour lift to pink cheeks and a happy state of mind can come from a strawberry cream mask treatment, there is a singular experience ahead of you!

Wise women have been buying this strawberry cream mask for something like three dollars—and have been delighted to pay that much. But you can try in at a half-price, if you buy it within a certain limited time ahead.

Its maker (a world-famous dermatologist) considers it her greatest triumph because it is the culmination of years of scientific experiment.

In exactly 20 minutes the mask (which is a delightfully textured and scented satin-pink cream) gives you back the radiance of your early twenties.

Fatigue-etched lines that show any strain you've been under, vanish under its soothing touch. If you've felt that certain masks are too strenuous or even drying to your skin, you'll find yourself happy with the results of this one. For it does not over-stimulate or stiffen the skin. It is left clear, soft and tingling with cool crispness. You'll look as if you've had a beauty nap as deep as Snow White's.

Although for a long time the mask treatment was available only in a gilded setting, its appearance in small jars makes it easy as anything to use at home.

To learn the name of this strawberry cream mask which is available for a limited time at half price, and the name of the shop where it may be found, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4800, seven days until 5, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Should Politicians Be Trained?

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Everything's specialized, these days. Everyone's trained. Everyone, says ELEANORE KASELITZ of DETROIT, . . . [illegible] . . . except the people upon whom, ultimately, the government runs the Game—OUR AMERICAN POLITICIANS.

Eleanore Kaselitz is one of those Young Americans who are raising such ruckus in our column on Mondays and Sundays. Time was—and not long since—when Politics meant less than nothing to any American youngster. But the Rising Generation has been aroused.

Today Junior and Sister realize, all too clearly, the burden we've prepared for them to carry . . . the responsibilities we've created for them to face. And they're wondering—PLENTY!

Shall they accept these burdens and responsibilities unquestioningly—like dumb beasts led to the slaughter? OR SHALL THEY DEMAND INTELLIGENT LEADERSHIP BEFORE THEY ACCEPT UNPLEASANT CONSEQUENCES? IN SHORT, CAN POLITICIANS CONTINUE TO BE DIZZY DUMB-BELLS . . . OR MUST THEY BE ENLIGHTENED CITIZENS, WITH AT LEAST AS MUCH TRAINING AS WE NOW DEMAND FROM PLUMBERS AND ENGINEERS?

Here's the letter which started it all—and which I heartily recommend as subject for this evening's family council.

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"I am 28 years of age, hold a clerical job with a local trucking company and earn $22.50 a week. Before I could apply for this job I had to go to a business college for over two years.

"One of my boy friends is a tool engineer and had to go to college for four years before he even was given a chance to apply for a job as a draftsman.

"My dentist had to spend five years in a medical university before he was allowed to pull one of my teeth.

"My lawyer tells me it took him four years in law school and lots of work for a bar examination before he could take my case.

"My teacher in business college had to study years for a teacher's certificate.

"These people I mentioned earn from about $2000 to $4000 a year, to which they are welcome—after spending years in schools and hundreds of dollars for tuition and books.

"But there is another class of people—and these the most powerful in the land—who do not need to take any course of study or present any diploma before THEY are allowed to practice. I REFER TO OUR POLITICIANS.

"I know of a few real instances. One was originally a newspaper boy . . . another a shoe clerk . . . another a factory worker. Today, these men hold jobs which bring them from $2500 to $6000 a year . . . drive expensive cars, build beautiful homes filled with the finest furniture.

"But did they get these luxuries through their splendid service? They did not. They got them by ordinary scheming and graft . . . BY DOING FAVORS FOR SOME FELLOW HIGHER UP.

"We working young people of today are not as ignorant and trusting as our fathers and mothers were at our age. WE KNOW THAT THERE IS PRACTICALLY NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE AVERAGE POLITICIAN AND THE AVERAGE GANGSTER . . . THEY BOTH WORK BY THE SAME METHODS.

"Not one out of fifty has any special training—any real knowledge of governmental procedure. They have no recommendations behind them . . . no guarantees of their honesty, such as a sommed clerk would have to give.

"YET TODAY THEY ARE SITTING IN POWER OVER US ALL—AND GETTING A 'CUT' ON ALL OUR TAXES.

"I ask you, Miss Robinson, is this fair? Should we Americans allow ourselves to be governed by untrained climbers who have less recommendation than we would demand of the plumber who fixes a broken faucet?

"NO WONDER WE ARE IN THE JAM WE ARE IN TODAY!

"Eleanore Kaselitz,
"Detroit, Michigan."

There's a question which challenges every American voter . . . and which should make most of us feel like dented dimes!

We wheeze and whine, bleat and bellow about political chicanery. Yet we all know that, as a statesman, the average politician is a good dishwasher.

So what? Are we going to do something about it? OR JUST SHUFFLE ALONG?

Keep Trump Control -:- By Josephine Culbertson

In certain hands the declarer's one and only objective should be to maintain his trump control.

I refer to such a hand as the following:

North-South vulnerable.

	♠ 9 8 3 ♡ 6 5 3 ◇ 9 6 4 2 ♣ Q 7 6
♠ A K Q 9 4 ♡ 9 8 ◇ J 10 ♣ 10 8 5	North South	♠ J 10 2 ♡ 10 7 4 3 ◇ K 8 5 ♣ 9 4
	♠ 7 ♡ A K Q J ◇ A Q 7 3 ♣ A K J 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	2 ♣	Pass	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

South chose his three-club rebid in the hope that North might be able to respond with three diamonds, on something like five to a jack. North, however, with a miserable holding, could do nothing except give South a preference between the two suits already bid. South was then afraid to show the diamond suit, fearing that a contract of five would be too high in conjunction with the weak hand that North's bidding had shown. As it happens five diamonds would have been very easy, but for that matter so should four hearts have been under the proper management.

West opened the spade king and continued with the ace. Declarer, quite overlooking the vulnerability of his trump position and the fact that he and dummy had a combined total of only seven, ruffed and drew waffle iron, and stack in three trumps, with an overflowing portion of sweetened crushed strawberries between each layer, and top with whole berries. Separate into quarters, where the waffle iron marks come. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

It succeeded but, due to his previous lack of foresight, it did him very little good. Now, when he cashed his last trump West showed out, and he could take only one more club and the diamond and before East ruffed a club and returned a spade, which permitted West to run three spade tricks. Thus, the contract was down two.

How different it would have been if South had realized the futility of ruffing the second (or third) heart lead. It should have been clear that if the diamond king was on side, ten tricks were in sight by merely conceding three spade tricks to the enemy, discarding two diamonds from the South hand on the second and third rounds.

At the point dummy also would be out of spades, and dummy's trumps would protect declarer from a force. If the diamond finesse were to lose, the contract simply could not be made, because even if the trumps broke 3-2 declarer would soon be reduced to fewer trumps than the opponents would hold.

As may be seen, if declarer had played properly and thrown his two low diamonds on the second and third spade leads, he then would have taken all the rest of the tricks and fulfilled his contract merely by virtue of the diamond finesse.

Uprise of Hats for Lifted Coiffures

LINES that curve upward or that slant away from the head are appearing on the smartest new hats. And that's your cue—if an uppity coiffure suits the tilt of your nose and the set of your eyes—to lift your curls and pile them in shining arcs around your head.

Though the rabid reversalists would have all of us sweep our beloved long bobs up high, and knot romantic velvet bows among the curls and twine Josephine chiffons through the strands, the advice of this department is to do just what your type dictates. And that many a hat with upsweeping lines is as ravishing on one of the half-up-and-half-down coiffures, or the newest version of the page boy which is your pride and delight. Connie Reed, who models these hats, follows the upward curve of her eyes with her coiffure. But any of these hats—stuit, redingote or print frock types—will sit as easily on a long bob. These are very choice—and are at the bottom price of a shop noted for its chic hats, said price being around seven dollars. Except for the natural straw and grosgrain hat with the tremendous feather. That's about twice the price.

Left, toast accent for a print frock or ensemble is fine stuff. Especially if it's done in a so-shallow sailor with flowers and veils and velvet binding.

For shopping information on any of these hats, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, week-days until five, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Married Comrades

By ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 874

THERE was a note of something very like contempt in Mr. Underwood's voice and manner as he shot the question, "Are you afraid?" at Jerry Ticer.

And evidently the barb got beneath Jerry's rather thick mental epidermis, for he shot back a quick, indignant answer: "Afraid? Not me!" Turning abruptly, he climbed into his car and swung it around so quickly that it almost turned over.

Jerry came to a stop at the top of the hill and waited obediently until we came up and descended from the big car.

"If you'll stop supposing and worrying over our fine-spun alibies," his wife told him caustically "you'll get along better. If it will be any consolation to you, I'll give you the assurance that none of the three of us will approach this dead man any nearer than is necessary for Mrs. Ticer to point out the place where she saw his body. But if the man should be living—and should you need us—we'll be right on the job."

"You don't have to tell me that," her husband told her affectionately, and then, with a command to Mrs. Ticer and Jerry to show the way, our procession fell into line Jerry a few steps ahead, Mrs Ticer, with her hand clinging fast to mine, close behind him. Harry Lillian, Dicky and Jim bringing up the rear

I knew that the men did not wholly trust Jerry Ticer's assurance that the sinister watcher in the shack had gone away.

Within a hundred feet of the shack, Jerry veered his course abruptly and followed a path so overgrown with vines that we had to watch our steps with exceeding care less we stumble.

"Careful!" Dicky's voice said behind me, and then I felt his hand gripping my arm.

"I'll catch you if you trip," he said grimly, "but don't trip."

"In there!" he said huskily.

Revere Girl Invents 'Sauce for the Goose'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There are so many "shrinking violets" and "weeping willows" among women that it does my old heart good to receive an occasional letter from a girl with spunk.

Nora of Revere is the young woman to whom I refer. And, because her letter contains a needed lesson for hundreds of readers, I am printing it in its entirety. Here it is:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We've been going "steady" for the past five months and I like him ever so much. He's often told me how much he loves me, but for the past few weeks I haven't seen him.

Then we met and had a straight talk, and he said: "You're too quiet to have a good time with, but you're the type of girl I intend to marry."

And so he neglects me and goes with a wild bunch. I took a leaf out of your advice and, instead of staying at home and grieving, went to a couple of dances and a movie with another boy.

He was furiously jealous, upbraided me, and called me fickle.

NORA.

MY DEAR NORA:

When I get a letter like yours, I'm delighted to find a girl with so much old-fashioned spunk.

This young man feels free to have what he calls a good time with the wild ones, and expects you to sit at home meanwhile and think of him as an absentee Prince Charming

Congratulations.

City Landmark May Be Razed

Disagreement over who should contribute the funds of "Pioneer Village" replica of 17th Century Salem today brought the threat of destruction for the landmark which has drawn thousands of tourists to Salem.

The city council has disputed the right of Christian Lantz, chairman of the park commission, to control the fund made up of the admission fees charged visitors.

In turn Lantz has stated that the village should be in complete control of his department, and in an order written from his vacation home in California he has ordered the buildings to be torn down.

Strawberries Ideal Dessert

By MARTHA LEE

WORD comes that more than half the governors of these United States have joined Louisiana's governor in declaring April 3-10 National Strawberry Week.

A little old lady who had always been as brisk tee-totaler as you'll meet went to New Orleans for Mardi Gras, and came back reminiscing of Absinthe Frappe and Planter's punch, much to the surprised delight of her grandchildren.

Just what it did for her moral structure we would not attempt to say, but the effect on the dinner table was something worth repeating. From Louisiana she also brought back many delightful new recipes, the peer of them being:

STRAWBERRIES CHALMETTE

Wash and drain well 1 pint of strawberries. Stem, halve and cover with ¼ cup powdered sugar. While this stands in the refrigerator, whip two egg whites to the stiffest degree you can achieve, then add ¼ cup powdered sugar and whip some more. Pour over the strawberries 2 tablespoons good rum. Fold the berries into egg whites, pile lightly into tall, thin glasses. Serve very, very cold.

• • •

Strawberry ice cream is a great favorite, but the trick you want to learn is getting the cream frozen without turning the berries to globes of red ice. A French chef in this great strawberry producing state worked out these two recipes with that very trick in mind.

LOUISIANA STRAWBERRY MARLOW

2 cups strawberries
20 marshmallows
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 cup whipping cream
Pinch of salt

Mash the strawberries and sprinkle with sugar. Let set until juice is drawn. Pour off 1 cup of juice and heat with marshmallows in top of double boiler until marshmallows are melted. Cool. Add rest of juice, salt, and fold in whipped cream. Pour into tray and freeze in automatic refrigerator. When frozen, stir well and fold in mashed strawberries, and allow to freeze again. The second freezing will take only a short while and does not allow berries time to grow icy.

FROZEN STRAWBERRIES AND CREAM

1 pint strawberries
2 tablespoons plain gelatin
½ cup top milk or breakfast cream
¾ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream
½ cup top milk or breakfast cream
Pinch of salt

Crush berries with sugar and cook very gently over low heat for a few minutes. Drain liquid from berries and while liquid is still hot add gelatin, which has soaked 5 minutes in cold water, stirring until gelatin is completely dissolved. Place in refrigerator to chill. When cold, add half of milk and then fold in whipped cream. Pour into tray to freeze. When frozen, remove from tray to chilled bowl, with chilled spoon stir in rest of milk, salt, and the strawberries, which have been put through a sieve. When smooth, return to tray and freeze. Serve garnished with whole strawberries.

'Your Figure, Sir!' -:- By Ida Jean Kain

THE excess beltline, once given the honorary title of aldermanic front and decorated with an impressive gold watch chain is out of favor. As far as statistics go, the aldermanic front is simply a health hazard and a tax on the heart—and men object to taxes.

Some industrious statistician once discovered the surprising fact that if all the excess beltline inches were laid end to end they would stretch from Portland Maine, to Portland, Oregon. But all the humor is taken out of the situation by some more statistics which indicate that a long beltline generally means a short lifeline. Every excess inch of abdominal girth may be considered a serious factor in life expectancy.

If you have taken on fifty excess pounds, with forty of them concentrated on the beltline, you are overdue for the exercise that will restore you to normalcy. But take it easy! When a man is finally sold on exercise, he is apt to be oversold. He goes into an exercise program in the same spirit that he tackles any other problem. He wants to work hard and get it over with!

A corporation front proves that you have been getting too little exercise and you cannot plunge into a strenuous program. You must ease into your exercises and keep in mind that certain types are harmful. Do not try those exercises in which the trunk is lowered backward to the floor, for they place too great a strain on the abdomen.

The strain entailed by an exercise is no gauge of its effectiveness. One of the most efficient measures for dealing with a protruding abdomen is to lie on the back on the floor, knees flexed and feet on the floor, and to pull up and in with the lower abdominal muscles until the small of the back touches the floor. You won't find this as simple as it sounds, but there is no strain connected with it. Repeat the exercise ten times and each time try to press the small of the back more closely against the floor. Hold for a second, then relax the muscles. Do the exercise very slowly.

Lying in the same position with knees flexed and soles of feet on the floor, raise the hips off the floor until the body is in a straight line from chest to knees. Hold this position for a second and very slowly lower the hips to the floor. Repeat 10 times.

Before you do even the simplest exercises, get your doctor to check you over. For the first week limit your exercises to the two given here and gradually add others from the leaflet, "Waistlines and Beltlines."

You cannot reduce any great amount of weight solely by exercise. In order to do this you must also cut down on your food intake by following such balanced low-calorie menus as the one given today.

Tech Head Invents 'Earthquake Table'

The measuring of automobile drivers' physical fatigue by a new electric method was announced today by Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who addressed the American College of Physicians in New York.

The driver sits in an automobile seat, his hands on the steering wheel, the whole mounted on an "earthquake shaking table" which duplicates the performance of any type auto over any kind of road.

The driver's fatigue is measured by the passage of an electrical current through his body. Apparatus used is called the "impedance comparator" and has already been used to determine the changes on the tissue below the skin caused by the current.

Warm March Blamed For Cold April Here

April showers may bring May flowers but a March that is nice will often bring ice, warned U. Harold Noyes, the official weatherman at the Federal building today.

Averse to making rash statements about the weather, Noyes tried to defend Mother Nature when asked why April has been colder than usual this year.

"It's cold just now because we are in a mass of polar air overspreading most of the country—but it really isn't so awfully cold," he stated.

"Normal temperatures for April are 35 degrees for a minimum and 50 for a maximum. Wednesday was eight degrees below normal."

Unusually warm days in the mid month of March are partly responsible for the chilly nights New Englanders have been experiencing this month, Noyes said.

"The last few days of March were on the average of 20 degrees above normal and we've got to look backward and blame our cold weather conditions on that month.

"In March we should normally have seven and a half inches of snow. Instead, we had only one-third of an inch. Normal snowfall for April is two inches, and we haven't had enough yet this month to measure."

Just to make April seem balmier, the Federal weather man recalled that in April 20 years ago Boston had a snowfall of nine inches all within a 24-hour period. Then by way of emphasis he picked up a weather report from the "north country."

"Temperatures of 6 below zero were reported at Moosonee, Ontario and because polar air masses are trying to find a way to reach the equator to become warm we are bound to feel the cold in our marrow," he explained.

"Warm air from the south is continually passing northward to cool but just now the warm air mass is not traveling over our part of the world.

"For some reason or other these air masses, making their constant journeys north and south, do not 'choose to run' over the same portions of the globe."

GIRL About TOWN

By MARJORIE McBRIDE

A provincial from Pinckney street visited Manhattan the other day and called on a transplanted Bostonian who has become a patriotic New Yorker. Looking down his nose, Mr. Pinckney Street said New York was a lunatic city, with a Madison Square Garden which wasn't a garden and not even in Madison square.

Marjorie McBride

"Is that so?" yelled the other man, immediately on the defensive. "Do you know that—"

It was only the beginning. He pointed out that the Arlington Street Church in Boston fronts on Boylston street . . . there is no church in Church Green, nor is there a green . . . Winthrop square is a triangle . . . geographically, the south end of Boston is the west end . . . the west end is the north end . . . the north end is the east end, according to the compass . . . and Boston College is a university, and is located in Newton.

By that time, Pinckney Street was hanging on the ropes, but Mr. Manhattan was just warming to his work. He reminded the Bostonian that you go to Federal street to get into the State Street Investment Company . . . that State Street Research and Management Company is likewise in Federal . . . that mail clerks get gray early because of the number of Washington streets around here . . . there's a 26 Washington street, for instance, in Boston, Arlington, Belmont, Brookline, Canton, Charlestown and Norwood.

Before signing off, the New Yorker recalled that Boston is the only big city on this side of the Atlantic where many streets suddenly and without rhyme or reason change name . . . such as Columbus avenue, which haltingly becomes Seaver street . . . Walnut avenue, which becomes Sugarloaf street . . . Kneeland, which has its face lifted passing Washington street, and turns into Stuart street.

The Bostonian had enough. He wouldn't even have a drink. He was afraid the New Yorker would propose a Ward Eight and start an argument as to whether it was invented in Ward Eight or Ward Three.

Here's Old Recipe For Parker Rolls

Below you will find the ancient recipe for Parker House rolls, as given out by Managing Director Glenwood J. Sherrard of the current Parker House management. This is the first time. It's a trade secret. Designed for housewives the recipe makes about two dozen rolls.

One-half cup of scalded milk . . . one-half cup of boiling water . . . one teaspoonful of salt . . . one teaspoonful of sugar . . . one tablespoon of butter . . . one-half yeast cake, dissolved in one-half cup of lukewarm water . . . three cups of flour or enough to knead.

Put milk, water, salt and butter into a bowl and mix well . . . when the mixture is lukewarm, add the yeast and flour . . . let it rise to double its bulk, shape into balls, put into a buttered pan with a cover . . . let it rise again to double its bulk.

Use the floured handle of a wooden spoon to press the balls through the center, almost cutting in half . . . brush one-half with butter, fold the other half of each roll over and press together like a pocketbook . . . let it rise again, and bake for ten or fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Brush the tops with butter after baking.

That should do the trick . . . if it doesn't, take a nice, long rest and either forget the rolls or go to the Parker House and eat theirs.

Drawing Is Prized By Clarinetist

Crayon portrait of himself made by a saxophone player who sat next to him in a New Haven orchestra, years ago, is the most prized possession of Artie Shaw, clarinetist with the band at Roseland State Ballroom. The fellow wasn't a very good sax player, Artie says, and he wasn't even prompt at rehearsals. To placate other bandmen, he used to draw their heads. The artist doesn't have to blow on a saxophone any more. He's Peter Arno'

THIS Is LIFE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

A day or two ago the Tech Union, an organization modeled on the Oxford Union, a debating society which is supposed to train the undergraduates for parliamentary and cabinet posts in later life, held a debate on a fairly important subject in the field of education in general and education at Technology in particular.

Robert E. Rogers

"Resolved that the number of class and laboratory hours at the Institute be decreased," was the subject.

An interesting I say, but at that a fairly theoretical one, since there is not much possibility of a far reaching change in the curriculum sufficient to allow such a shift. To change the number and distribution of hours in a tabular view is one of the meanest jobs possible. Something to shudder at, what with schedule compromises to be arranged among seventeen courses, with malice to none and charity to all.

It is a job to affright the stoutest committee member, the veriest glutton for punishment of that sort, I should say that there is an imminent danger of such an upheaval.

But theoretically, it is a nice subject to debate, and one of general educational interest outside the circle of Technology undergraduates and their instructors.

For it turns upon nothing less than the problem of what offers the better education; a curriculum crowded with class and laboratory hours, from nine in the morning to five in the afternoon, with the evening necessarily taken up with preparation for tomorrow's classes or a more leisurely distribution of time, fewer classes and more afternoons free, with much more opportunity for reading and "cultural activities."

One Method Tech's And One Harvard's

The one thing that they probably do not take into consideration is that all the boys at Harvard who are taking courses in science are pushed just as hard, spend as many afternoons in laboratories, as do the Tech boys. They do not perhaps take into consideration that the two kinds of educational procedure demand different methods.

Liberal arts courses, which probably make up the majority at Harvard, demand comparatively few classes and a good deal of reading. That last can be done in any old time.

But work in science and engineering . . . chemistry and physics and drawing and the biological sciences, demands work, if not more intensive, at least more continuous and steady and regular.

Nose to Grindstone Irke Tech Student

I suspect it is the continuous necessity of keeping the nose to the grindstone over an eight hour day, plus evening study, which irks the Tech man in comparison to what he believes to be the carefree life of the Harvard undergraduate.

The Tech man, too, will tell you that the professors lay out twice as much preparation as there is time allowed for. But I suspect that the practice is not peculiar to the Institute. Every faculty, no matter where it is situated, does that.

It is a protective device to make sure that the boys will do the practical minimum by confronting them with the ideal maximum. I suspect that the work necessary for a good grade does not take less time at Tech than at Tech. It is merely more conveniently distributed; it seems more leisurely. I doubt if it really be.

I suspect that the Tech method is better for the boys than the Harvard method. At a certain age it is not a bad idea to accustom the boys to keep their noses to the grindstone. It is easier to get into habits of "manana" and dilatoriness than into habits of steady and continuous application.

But the Tech boys seem to imagine that the grass is always greener in the other fellow's yard.

House Slashes $44,000 From Race Board

Charge Jobs Given As Political Favors At Budget Debate

A slash of $44,000 from the appropriation of the state racing commission was passed by the House of Representatives today following a charge on the floor that persons were placed on the commission's payroll "to satisfy the whims of somebody or as a return for a political favor."

Resuming debate on Governor Hurley's 1938 budget, the House reduced the racing commission's $140,000 "personal services" appropriation to $100,000.

MORRIS MAKES CHARGE

Before the cut was passed, Representative Albert E. Morris, Democrat, of Everett, declared

"This is a great opportunity for economy. The commission has many persons working at the track for $10 and $20 a day who are unnecessary.

"They are put on the payroll to satisfy the whims of somebody or as a return for a political favor."

Speaking in support of the slash, Representative John E. Kerrigan, Democrat, of Fall River, charged the commission had charged pari-mutuel clerks at the tracks $5 for a license and then "never even bothered to acknowledge receipt of the money or send the license."

TRAVEL ITEM CUT

The $14,000 travel item of the commission was cut to $10,000 on a move by Representative Joseph S. Milano, Melrose Republican, long a foe of racing in this state.

Both reductions were passed on voice vote.

Lawyer Puts Up $825 for Gomez

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez's lawyer dug into his own pocket and shelled out $825 today so the Yankee twirler's spring training would not be interrupted by his wife's separation suit.

The lawyer, Lowell Birrell, appeared in Supreme Court and asked that the case be postponed until Lefty returns from the south, where he is warming up with the New York Yankees.

Birrell protested that the money had not arrived here yet, although he said Gomez had promised to pay, and he ended up by advancing the money himself.

The case thereupon was put over until May 2.

Starr Charges His Wife Is an Habitual Drunkard

SALEM, April 7—Begining in 1936 his wife "started to become a confirmed and habitual drunkard," Hyman S. Starr, wealthy Beverly shoe dealer, testified in probate court today under cross-examination.

The shoe dealer took the stand, to be cross-examined by Attorney Frank Rafter, as the trial opened for his third day.

He testified that his wife didn't drink when he married her in 1910, later she drank occasionally and in 1936 she started to drink in

"Isn't it true that you buy liquor in case lots?" Attorney Rafter asked Starr.

"I bought four cases in 1918," he replied, "but I put them away and they've lasted 20 years."

Starr denied that four months ago he came home sick at 2 a. m. from a Boston night club because he'd had too much to drink.

"I was sick—not drunk," Starr declared.

Starr also denied that his wife had lent him "between $15,000 and $20,000" but stated the sum was $7500 which he repaid. He said that the money lent him by his wife had nothing to do with whatever success he had achieved in business.

"Isn't it true that you are bringing this divorce so that you might defeat any possibility of

"No, sir," Starr replied.

He denied using profane language to his wife or that he had ever hit her on the bridge of the nose with a telephone.

"We had word fights," he testified, "but never any arguments during which blows were struck."

He said his wife drank at parties but always "behaved herself" in the presence of others.

Many so-called benefits for the blind are conducted as rackets by "fakers who prey on the gullible public" which was minuted of $250,000 last year, the legislative committee on ways and means was told at the State House today.

Kelly Protests Harrington

A march on the State House by 200,000 protesting automobile owners was predicted today by Lieutenant Governor Francis E. Kelly in event his demand for a public hearing on the appointment of Charles F. J. Harrington is granted.

Harrington, Watertown Democrat, was appointed state insurance commissioner by Governor Hurley to the post held by Francis J. Deelles, a Curley appointee.

In seeking public hearings, Kelly declared he feared compulsory automobile insurance rates would be increased with Harrington as the commissioner.

He produced a copy of an insurance journal of last October in which Harrington was quoted as a speaker at an insurance convention in Virginia. The paper declared that Harrington had advised his hearers that "the 12 per cent allowed in Massachusetts is not sufficient to pay the expenses of putting the business on the books."

Strike of Lynn Pupil Brings Ultimatum

Set Deadline Before Invoking Law On Truancy

With all parties deadlocked, a three-day period of grace was set today before invoking truancy laws to end Lynn's one-pupil strike.

Mrs. Anna Mehan of Hollingsworth street maintained her determined stand that her daughter, Charlotte, 10, will be kept from classes in the High and school until a teacher apologizes.

Just as determined was Superintendent of Schools Harvey S. Gruver, who said he would seek application of the truancy law if the child is not back at classes within three days.

PRINCIPAL SILENT

Should authorities seek to enforce the truancy law, Mrs. Mehan declared, she would take a court action to oppose them.

The butt of the disagreement, Miss Gladys G. Chase, school principal, had nothing to say today. Mrs. Mehan has termed her attitude as "inhuman."

According to Superintendent Gruver the mother's disagreement hinged on a controversy over the use of the school gymnasium or a mother's gym class.

GRUVER STATEMENT

Superintendent Gruver issued the following statement after conferring with the mother

"I have found nothing transpired in the classroom in connection with Charlotte. The matter in question was precipitated by something originating in the Parent-Teachers' Association over which I have no control.

"Some members of the Parent-Teachers' Association to some degree are antagonistic toward Miss Chase in the matter of using the Highland School gymnasium for a mothers' gym class.

"I will take no action for three days or so, and then I will be obliged to seek the application of the truancy law in the case, unless the pupil is attending school or receiving teaching required.

"The Parent-Teachers' Association is helpful rather than harmful. Insofar as the superintendent of schools is concerned, there is nothing for criticism in the action of Miss Chase."

Baby Girl Saved By Breath-Giver

Unaware of her narrow escape from death, two-year-old Marie Selvitella of Cottage street, East Boston, was recovering in City Hospital today.

She was rushed to the hospital after police and firemen worked over her for a half hour with an inhalator.

Tax Collections Under '37 Mark

Despite the city's drives to collect various taxes since the first of the year, less money has been collected during the first three months than over a similar period last year, it was announced at City Hall today.

City Collector Merritt Thompson announced tax collections totaled $9,972,649 as compared to $10,025,857 in 1937, approximately $50,000 less.

Among the city's measures to collect taxes was the cutting down of the supply to properties owned by delinquent landlords.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

TEN VOTES "against" and five votes "for" the so-called "dictator bill" was the "dope" given this column by three Massachusetts congressmen as the Bay State poking on the important measure.

This poll was predicated on what all three congressmen, Flaherty of Charlestown, Healey of Somerville and Casey of Clinton, said was a MUST amendment (and so recognized by the administration forces) . . . That amendment, of course, is the educational chapter which Catholic leaders feared might affect the parochial schools of the country.

Massachusetts will vote along strict party lines when the bill in its amended form is put to a vote, Congressmen Flaherty, Healey and Casey were unanimous in predicting . . . The ten Republican members will be anti-Reorganization and the five Democrats in favor.

This was the situation as the 'Paul Reveres of 1938" completed their "ride to Washington" . . . Incidentally, your reporter was surprised to see that columns of space were given to the "Paul Revere" in Baltimore and Washington papers . . . But the "ride" as far as Congressmen Flaherty and Healey and Casey are concerned will not change their votes, all three declared.

• • •

EXCLUSIVE: Progressing swiftly and quietly the entire New England WPA system is undergoing a survey which will result in important executive (and semi-executive) changes . . . Under five particularly active certain employes of the WPA who are alleged to have been mixing romance with business . . . The real story probably will "never break," but what you have read in this paragraph is "gospel," not gossip.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

Mary Brian will be a guest star this summer at the Cape Playhouse, Dennis . . . Joe Dineen's "Murder in Massachusetts" is expected to go before the cameras shortly . . . Your reporter saw the performance at Ford's Theater, Baltimore, of the company which will interpret Claire Booth's comedy, "The Women," when it plays the Colonial April 18 . . . Lois Wilson is swell in the leading role and the entire company is of Broadway standard.

Frank Shelton will be named assistant corporation counsel, this column has been tipped reliably . . . Remember Dale Alexander, the big-hemoth who held down first base for the pre-Yawkey Red Sox? . . . His batted out two homers and a double, driving in seven runs against the Baltimore Orioles for the Chattanooga Class A) Lookouts.

Colonel Tom Sullivan will stay as transit commissioner . . . Sheila Barrett, a pet of the newspaper girls and boys, will be the star of the New York Women's Press Association at the Astor, April 23, shindig . . . Subordinates of Clifton W. Mack, chief of the Internal Revenooers' intelligence unit, have been ordered to quit certain state and city officials regarding their income tax reports . . .

Bay State breweries are planning a fight for "local protection" . . . Only approximately 4½ per cent of the beer and ale consumed in Massachusetts is home-brewed . . . In Rhode Island, that state's breweries enjoy 97 per cent of the trade.

If James Roosevelt and Governor Hurley fail to make good Governor's brother-in-law, Henry Cushing, will support the governor come what may . . . The increasing Cushing wishes it known that he is not now nor ever will be a candidate for city, country, state or national elective or appointive office . . . Which covers the ground with a certain amount of thoroughness . . . Betsy Cushing Roosevelt, Henry's sister, is the most popular (with the press) of any Washington Mrs. Big Shot . . .

Slot machines are operating in Maryland, and the "one-armed" bandits are believed to be hurting the "take" at Bowie . . . The slot machines are legal (temporarily) through being affixed to a pin-ball machine, and as (technically) a part of the pin-ball machine, they can be played inside the law . . . The "tote" board at Bowie is antiquated, and New Englanders at first races are disappointed about this . . . But if they are farm-players, they must be delighted at the new favorites coming home at Bowie . . .

Albert La Porte, the Springfield-Boston business man, was a visitor in Washington . . . So were the charming Rothwell sisters, Miss Stella Rothwell and Mrs. Samuel Nesson, daughters of the late Dr Rothwell of South Boston.

Ten years ago the will of Fred A. Allen of Brookline bequeathed a $5000 trust fund to a yellow-headed green parrot . . . Suffolk Street Trust Company is one of the trustees . . . Knows the bird doing, or has he gone by join his master?

Masterson Role for Cagney

Jimmy to Play Famous Sheriff of Dodge City in Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor International News Service

(Copyright, 1938, by International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, April 7—Secretive though Warner Brothers have tried to be on the Jimmy Cagney picture to follow "Angels With Dirty Faces," the idea has leaked out.

We hear it will be something entirely new for the screen's erstwhile favorite public enemy will be starred in a historical drama of the early West. He'll play Bat Masterson, famous sheriff of the days when Dodge City was a rough frontier town.

We knew Bat when he was writing sports for the Morning Telegraph, after he had become a gentle, kindly old man. He Louella O. Parsons used to tell great stories of his exploits in the wild West as the 22-year-old sheriff of Ford county, and how he killed eight bandits in the pursuit of his duty. Masterson was a great friend of President Theodore Roosevelt and often when Teddy was bored with affairs of state he'd send for Bat to come to Washington and entertain him with his stories. Wayne Morris will also figure in the Cagney drama as a baby faced bandit a la Billy the Kid.

The newspapers really ought to start charging the motion picture studios for ideas. Warner Brothers, particularly, scan every paper to find a story that might be converted into a movie drama. Their latest is "Thousand Dollar Window," authored by Mark Hellinger, the Hearst writer. Mark takes his idea from the ticket seller who won over $2000 at the Santa Anita track last season when an irate customer turned back his tickets, claiming a mistake had been made.

Edward G. Robinson will be asked to play the starring role, and while it's a race track story, no race will be shown. The drama takes place back of the ticket selling window, "Broadway Bill," produced some years ago by Columbia with Warner Baxter, was also a Hellinger opus.

Chatter in Hollywood: The Charlie Chaplin divorce is expected to take place at Pebble Beach today. Paulette Goddard and her mother came down from town Sunday and immediately to the Chaplin house on the hill but the lord and master wasn't there. So after waiting three or four days, Paulette was expected to leave last night for Pebble Beach to talk things over. I say expected because one never knows what this young lady will do next.

She is scheduled to report at the Selznick studio Monday for her picture with Janet Gaynor and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. At the Chaplin studios it was said that Mr. Chaplin had given no inkling of when he intends to return.

Snapshots of Hollywood

CECILIA PARKER'S mother has relented so it's wedding bells for her and DICK BALDWIN; PAUL MUNI is keeping fans with his dentist every day; MAX BAER deserves a pat on the back for his changed attitude. He no longer chases the gals but seems to be a real family man—even eating at joints at a cafe; the youth with whom MARJORIE WEAVER went sleeping a few nights ago was not JOE HUMPHREY of Louisville . . . LORETTA YOUNG, who was never an sick as the gossips said, back on the lot at work; nice gesture on the part of JANE BRYAN, turning over her mountain cabin for the summer to invalid school children; MELVYN DOUGLAS and HELEN GAHAGAN celebrating his birthday and their wedding anniversary all in one day; MARTHA RAYE and DR. WIGGINS seldom miss an evening at a certain night spot; GAIL PATRICK suffering from a misplaced eyebrow received when an automobile hit her car; a marathon romance among the younger generation is that of NOAH BEERY, JR., and MAXINE JONES, BUCK'S girl . . . all for today. See you tomorrow!

Their Latest Hit Held Over at Keith's

Herbert Marshall and Gail Patrick, always in the forefront of screen favorites, give grade A performances as usual in Deanna Durbin's latest film hit, "Mad About Music," which has been held over for a second week at Keith's Memorial.

Held Over At Keith's

Deanna Durbin's new Universal picture, "Mad About Music," is being held over for a second week, beginning today at Keith Memorial theater, together with the stage show headlined by Jane Pickens, stage, screen and radio star.

In the principal featured role in "Mad About Music" with Deanna is Herbert Marshall. The principal feminine role, that of Deanna's young mother, is played by beautiful Gail Patrick. William Frawley, screen veteran, is seen as Dusty Rhodes, a theatrical manager. Arthur Treacher, noted English comedian, is also featured. Marcia Mae Jones and Jackie Moran, two well-known screen youngsters, are cast in prominent roles.

Headlining the stage show, Miss Pickens was most recently featured with Ben Bernie every Wednesday night over the entire Columbia network. She is one of the few artists who has made good singing both popular and operatic numbers. Her voice and distinctive arrangements have made her one of radio's top vocalists. Jack Holland and June Hart, distinctive ballroom dancing "team," Park and Clifford, acrobatics-gymnast, Gene Sheldon, pantomimic comedian; Louis DaPron, tap dancer extraordinary and the Mantattanites contribute their specialties to the stage show.

Betty Alden on Beacon Hill

Expedition's Tibet Experiences Thrill Socialites

By BETTY ALDEN

SLOWLY TREKKING ten miles a day by yak-back can be a lot more interesting and exciting than it sounds . . . as those who attended the lecture at the Museum of Natural History last evening will agree . . .

Brooke Dolan of Philadelphia gave an illustrated lecture, describing his journey with a party of explorers into the wilds of inner Tibet, in search of the illusive giant panda and other animal specimens for the Academy of Natural Sciences . . .

MRS. LAWRENCE COOLIDGE

Those in Mr. Dolan's fashionable audience . . . many of whom have recently returned from vacation trips by plane or on crack trains and ocean liners . . . were amused by the contrast between modern methods of travel and the way the small band of adventurers had to plod across China and Tibet . . .

After a six-months journey from Shanghai, up the Yangtze river, through territory which is now the scene of some of the bitterest Sino-Japanese fighting, Mr. Dolan's party penetrated a Tibetan wilderness with a pack train of yaks which could travel about ten miles a day . . .

It seems a yak is something of an epicure, and can enjoy his meals only in daylight . . . He will not alter his eating habits to make his supper time come at dusk, or after sundown, even for the museum, which has an important influence over other members of the animal kingdom . . . Consequently the travelers had to be on their way at the break of dawn, cover as many miles as possible before noon, then let the yaks graze until sundown . . .

This steady routine of plodding and munching was enlivened by frequent brushes with bands of natives, who were under the impression that the expedition was the advance guard of an army invading their territory . . . Fortunately, in every case the explorers were given the opportunity to identify themselves and convince the natives of their peaceful purpose . . .

* * *

Fashionable Audience

JOHN K. HOWARD, president of the Museum of Natural History, one of the prominent Boston socialites who has, himself, experienced many similar expeditions into the wilderness, introduced Mr. Dolan . . . Among the many fashionable listeners, who were delighted with the account of the trip, were Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, whose husband has been a member of several archaeological expeditions to far off lands . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge were in a party with Mrs. Roger W. Cutler, who has just returned from Palm Beach . . . The Forrester A. Clarks were among the many late comers separated because of lack of room . . . Kitty sitting in the front row with their guest, and Tim way in the back . . . Mrs. George H. Lyman, Jr., another young socialite, who has a keen interest in adventurous subjects, was also present, as were the Charles Codmans, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., Mrs. William Davies Sohier, Katharine Lane, the sculptress; Alice Ware and her mother, Mrs. Charles Eliot Ware, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Mack . . . Juliet Richardson, who recently has become a diligent worker for the Museum, had a desk near the entrance where she was taking applications for membership in this lively and interesting organization . . .

* * *

The Wimbledon tournaments still remain the mecca and highest attainment for tennis stars throughout the world . . . and though Sarah Palfrey Fabyan (Mrs. Marshall Fabyan, Jr.) recently won the New England women's championship by defeating Kay Winthrop, she is already beginning to practice for her trip to the center of the tennis world at Wimbledon in England . . . She is planning to sail the second week in May . . .

* * *

Fewer Deb Fetes; More Weddings

ACCORDING to Mrs. Kennard Winsor, who compiles the debutante list each year, the list for 1938-39 will contain fewer names than usual . . . which will probably result in fewer debutante parties in June . . . But, as far as we can see, there is no bear market on June weddings, with the usual flock of socially prominent couples already telling their friends to save such and such a date in the month of roses to help them celebrate their marriage . . .

Added to the growing schedule of important June nuptials is that of Celina Robbins and Edmund Kellogg, who have picked June 9 as their day of days . . . while Laura Wiggins, daughter of Charles Wiggins, 2d, headmaster of Noble and Greenough, and Mrs. Wiggins, is considering June 24 or 25 as a choice time to become the bride of Eliot Putnam, Jr. . . . The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot T. Putnam of Beacon street . . .

Both of these future brides are members of the Junior League and Vincent Club, so their weddings will bring about a lot of parties and excitement among a wide circle of friends . . .

* * *

Breakfast to Follow Wedding Ceremony

DR. AND MRS. GEORGE POWERS of Beacon street have sent out cards inviting their friends to a wedding breakfast at their Beacon street home, following the marriage, on April 30, of their daughter, Madeleine, to William Tyson Kemble . . . After their honeymoon, Bill and his bride-to-be will live in one of the little cottages on the Powers' between-season estate in the rolling [illegible]

* * *

Mr and Mrs. Russell G Fessenden have opened Tanglewood, their estate in Concord, for the spring and summer season . . . after spending the mid-winter at the Charlesgate in town . . .

"Sis" McKean, who is fast attaining the distinction of being one of the finest women skiers in the world, has one more opportunity, this season, to add to her wonderful collection of trophies . . . in the races in the White Mountain region this coming week-end . . . In all her contests with the world's top notch skiers on the Alpine heights this past winter, "Sis" came through with flying colors, even winning a diamond insignia from a well known Austrian ski club . . . so in all probability she will come home with another trophy after the races Saturday and Sunday . . . "Sis" is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean of Beverly Farms.

Their Thoughts Turn Now to Deb Parties

ELIZABETH W. MINOT

MARIETTA LOUISE WITHINGTON

DEBUTANTE PARTIES have been out of the news for several months now, but a new season looms in the offing, so the papers will soon be full of pictures of smiling debs. If every bud in next season's crop is as pretty as these two girls, who are on the list, they will prove to be a delight to photographers.

Elizabeth W. Minot is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Minot of Brookline, and "Lais" Withington, whose full name is Marietta Louise, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Withington, also of Brookline. Plans for the new deb season are now being made.

Miss Hutchings Hostess at Fete In New York

Mary Hinckley Hutchings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutchings of Mt. Vernon street, who has an interesting job at the Fogg Art Museum at Harvard, is spending part of her spring vacation in New York, where she is a guest at the Weylin.

The other evening she was hostess at a pleasant dinner party in the Caprice Room in honor of Professor Paul J Sachs and Dr. Jakob Rosenberg, both of Harvard University. Other guests incuded Mr. and Mrs. John Corning, the Misses Betty Ruth Lawrence, Ethel Williams, Josephine Berg, Martha Preble Jones and Helen Read. Also Guthrie Guon, Daniel Tower, Sidney J. Freedberg and Otto Whitman.

Miss Hutchings prepared for her present job by attending the Sorbonne in Paris and the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece. She is also a graduate of the Winsor School and attended Bryn Mawr. She made her debut in the winter of 1935 and is a member of the Junior League.

Hope to Cure Hypertension

Scientists Seek to Transplant Kidneys

By G. B. LAL

International News Service Science Editor

(Copyright, 1938)

NEW YORK, April 7—Some day surgeons may be able to transplant new kidneys for old to cure high blood pressure

This magic of future surgery was presented as a scientific hope by Dr. Harry Goldblatt, professor of pathology at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, before the meeting of the American College of Physicians here.

Based upon the results of experiments on dogs, Dr. Goldblatt's thesis, he told, was:

"That anything that eliminates the cause of high pressure, as would, with the removal of both diseased kidneys, could be expected to relieve human hypertension.

"Whether this can be accomplished in man, as it can in animals, is for the future to disclose."

Gene Bury Solid Racing Man | $5000 for McCoy For Nova Bout

By JACK CONWAY

YOU WILL like Gene Bury, new racing secretary at Suffolk Downs . . . He is a practical racing man with a fine Kentucky background . . . He is 52 years of age, and has been around racing as man and boy for 35 years.

Mr. Boston

I talked with Bury for a few minutes the day he signed his contract with Suffolk Downs, and he impressed me as a solid type of citizen who will stand up and wear well down through the years . . . If you were to meet Bury on the street you might take him for a successful business man or as a leader in one of the professions.

Bury will fit well into the setup at the East Boston track . . . Jim Connors, Charley Adams, Bruce Wetmore and Jim Linnehan have had considerable business experience . . . They have the best interests of racing at heart, and are sure to do everything possible to help the turf sport . . . Bobby Ahearn has been named as an assistant to Floyd Bell, boss of the publicity department at Suffolk Downs . . . Ahearn recently returned to Boston after having spent the Winter and what money he had at Santa Anita . . . Eddie Mack has polished off his typewriter and will knock off some news items for the newspapers about Agawam Park.

Tony Palazolo, San Francisco boxing promoter who has been in town for several days, has offered Al McCoy $5000 for a bout with Lou Nova to be staged on the Coast the latter part of May or early in June . . . McCoy recently returned from a honeymoon trip to Bermuda. Al will probably make his next ring start in Montreal after which it is likely he will go to the Coast to take on Nova . . . McCoy would be a cinch to click in movie shorts as he is the best looking of the punch flingers.

Professional Hockey for Europe

JACK ADAMS will take 12 members of his Detroit Red Wings to Europe to play a team of Les Canadiens led by Cecil Hart . . . The two teams have been touring through the Canadian provinces and will sail for Europe early next week . . . While abroad the teams will play in England, France, Germany, Switzerland and Italy . . . There are some splendid rinks in England and on the Continent . . . The Palais de Sports in Paris, which is operated by Jeff Dickson, is as large as the Garden.

There was much weeping as the A. A. U. officials slashed the Annie Oakley list for the final night of the A. A. U. championships at the Garden . . . It was the last opportunity to get the necessary money to pay the high expenses in connection with the championship show, and veteran Chinese customers took stimulants and went to the box office and paid for their tickets . . . Yvon Robert, who was stripped of his title as world's heavyweight wrestling champion by an autocratic ruling of the American Wrestling Association, is planning drastic action to compel Steve Casey to meet him . . . Casey went West after running out of a match with Robert . . . The American Wrestling Association, which was always so eager to help Casey, has not shown Robert the least consideration.

Suffolk Reduces Service Charge

SUFFOLK Downs has reduced its service and tax charge on the complimentary clubhouse tickets to 75 cents against the $1 sock that was placed into effect at the second meeting of the East Boston track last season . . . The grandstand tariff will cost 40 cents . . . The high service charge of the second meeting caused a falling off in attendance figures, and also was felt in a lower mutuel handle . . . In Florida the service charge and tax on a clubhouse ticket is $1.50 . . . The tourists don't like it, but they put their money on the line . . . There were not any complimentary tickets at swanky Santa Anita which established new highs for mutuel handle and for attendance during the season that recently closed.

Sam Samons is getting ready for the opening of his restaurants in the clubhouse and grandstand at Suffolk Downs . . . Sam had charge of the food for the turf writers' dinner at Suffolk Downs last year, and did himself proud . . . Dave Wilson warns that many of the crack stables at Bowie are planning to ship to Suffolk Downs . . . J. V. Stewart has wired Ivan Pons for 16 stalls . . . The visiting boxers to the A. A. U. championships at the Garden have been enthusiastic in their praise of the fine treatment they have received from Tom Kanaly, Gene Driscoll, Herb Holm and other officials of the New England A. A. U. . . . Some of the boxers who appeared here said that when they were at a recent major show in New York they were treated shabbily by officials of the Metropolitan A. A. U.

Louis Refused Lenglet Bout

JOE LOUIS turned down an offer from Jack Kearns to meet Lenglet, French heavyweight, in Detroit before his June tussle with Max Schmeling . . . Lenglet is a good right hand puncher . . . In his only Boston appearance, Lenglet was outpointed by Al McCoy . . . The Garden continues to run ahead of former figures for attendance and cash in the box office . . . A fine start for youthful Walter Brown who took over the job as general manager of the Garden on the death of his illustrious dad.

With the A. A. U. boxing championships out of the way, Tom Kanaly was today busy getting things ready for the B. A. A. Marathon . . . Just one headache after another for Tom, but he manages to keep smiling.

Eddie Collins would like a little warm weather and some sunshine to get the playing field into condition for the Red Sox-Yankees opening on April 18 . . . The Yankees have not been doing so well in the South. They miss Joe DiMaggio's base hits . . . If DiMaggio fajis to come to terms with Colonel Ruppert before the opening of the season, the Sox will go into their series with the Yankees on even terms.

Sox Send Wilson To Hill Against Derringer

By JOE CASHMAN

SPARTANBURG, S. C. April 7—Failure of certain Red Sox stars to shine as brilliantly as expected the past two years may have lessened their drawing power among big league fans, but the names of Joe Cronin, Jimmy Foxx, "Lefty" Grove at al still have magic box office appeal in the hinterlands.

The every appearance of Tom Yawkey's gold-plated performers off the main baseball path is a signal for the cash customers to come a running in record numbers.

Your envoy has barnstormed through this neck of the woods with one or the other of the Boston clubs every spring for more than a decade.

And never before did we see a crowd half as large in either Savannah or Columbia, S. C., as turned out the past two days to watch the Fenway flock.

ANOTHER SELL-OUT

In Columbia it rained hard enough from noon on to warrant calling everything off, yet there wasn't a vacant seat in the grandstand at game time.

Another sell-out is assured here this afternoon, according to reports.

It might be argued, of course that it's the Reds, our barnstorming companions, and not the Sox who are the greater attraction, but the conduct of the audience proves otherwise.

Loud is the applause when the Sox headliners come to bat; louder is the urging from the stands that they park the ball out of the lot.

The Reds on the other hand watched in silence. We are pleased to report, also, that our braves are keeping faith with their country cousins.

Take that Columbia contest . . . There was no reason for the Sox to exert themselves in the wet, murk and mud, beyond trying to get in 4½ innings, so as to cash in on the house, yet, after being blanked with two hits for eight innings, they came up with a two-run rally to tie the score with two out in the ninth and keep the battle going until darkness finally bolted it in the tenth, with the count knotted 2-2.

GROVE AND OSTY

Only a club with an extraordinary will to win would struggle that hard an azhibition in such inclement weather.

The Sox may have been guilty of folding up at times in the past but unless every sign is misleading this latest Cronin crowd will never be out-hustled or out-gamed.

"Lefty" Grove pitched three scoreless innings; Oatermueller yielded two runs in five frames, and Humphreys finished up in the tie tilt.

"Lefty" Grissom allowed the Sox only one hit in six stanzas, and Cascarella got by until a single by Nonenkamp and doubles by Vosmik and Cronin scored the runs.

It will be Jack Wilson vs. Paul Derringer, with both due to go nine innings, in this village this afternoon.

N.E. Hearts Tick For 'Ticky'

One chance to cheer. But a chance worth having. New England's only national champion, Richard "Ticky" Ford of Lawrence, flooring Allen Morrison of Mattoon, Illinois, in their final bout of the 135-pound division. Ford easily won the decision. Ford recently won the New England amateur lightweight championship at the Boston Arena. He's a gamester and a good, two fisted fighter. Ford was also a star in the Hearst All-America bouts at the Garden the past winter. Although he did not win his class he was the darling of the crowd. But there was no question of his victory last night.

McDonald Defeats Germaine at Arena

Sandy McDonald won the main event of the weekly Charley Gordon wrestling show at the Arena by gaining two falls over Ted Germaine after the former had captured the first fall by tossing McDonald with a giant swing in 21 minutes, 5 seconds.

Referee Nugent disqualified Germaine for rough tactics during attempts to gain the second fall. This came after seven minutes and 56 seconds. McDonald went on to win the match by throwing Germaine with a top body press in six minutes, 40 seconds.

In the added popular feature of the night Senia Samara as Snow White with the Seven Dwarfs wrestlers attired in whiskers and "whatnots" engaged in a battle royal and when the pachyderms were unmasked Bull Herini was discovered as the victor, tossing Jack O'Brien in five minutes 28 seconds. Other bouts:

Stanley Wycott and Ed McNeil, draw; Bill Hall and Larry Acton, draw; Dynamite Dunn and Mickey Travis, draw; Art O'Mahoney threw Walter Lipson, flying tackle, 13 minutes, 14 seconds.

Rules Committee To Meet Sunday

NEW YORK April 7 (INS)—A heavier penalty on out-of-bounds kickoffs probably will be the major change to be made in rules of the National Professional Football League when the rules committee meets Sunday at Pittsburgh, officials announced.

The present rule calls for the ball to be placed in play 25 yards behind the spot the attempt is made, putting it in mid-field instead.

The deliberate out-of-bounds kickoff last season was used by several professional teams robbing games of the thrill of long run-backs by opponents.

Another possible change discussed by the pros would make all fumbles free balls. Under the present code fumbled forward passes and kicked balls cannot be advanced.

Ford Wins Title In 135 Pound Division

Lawrence Boy Given Award Over Morrison

By RINGSIDE

From the Garden wreckage, New England salvaged one title when the ever popular Raymond "Ticky" Ford of Lawrence came through in grand style to capture the 135 pound class.

Ford's achievement was particularly gratifying as it is the first time any boy from the section of the country has taken a National title since Nat Poe came through back in 1933 to win the 135 pound class in New York.

The other seven titles were confined to the East and Mid-West with the South, West and Newfoundland completely shutout.

ZULLO SHADED

Cleveland took honors by default, through with a double winner while other titles outside the Lawrence triumph went to Newark Philadelphia, Chicago, New York City and Flint, Michigan.

As far as the actual competing was concerned the Ford victory was exceptionally popular. His foe was a long, lean cowboy named Allen Morrison from Mattoon, Illinois.

Morrison reached the finals by eliminating Jerry Zullo, a Chelsea boy, in a very close battle. The verdict was very unpopular for Zullo had Morrison a mast out on his feet at the finish.

Ticky kept boring Morrison in and with his right and then jacked right hands and set to work on Allen's body. This attack had its telling effect and in the third round Morrison was hanging on for dear life.

Turner Pitches Against Senators

By BILL GRIMES

ORLANDO, Fla., April 7—Jim Turner, the Nolensville, Tenn., milkman, and Wesley "cheek" Ferrell, the Greensboro, N. C. sphonix, will hook up in a pitchers' battle this afternoon at Tinker Field, as the Bees take on the Senators.

The Bees have taken the Senators into camp twice in as many starts, and if Turner is in the form he was last Saturday over in Clearwater, when he held the Dodgers scoreless and limited their hitting to three singles, all of which were made by Kiki Cuyler, Bucky Harris has little chance of watching his charges set back the Stengels today.

On the way North, Stegel expects to encounter some bad weather. With that thought in mind, he asked TurnER if he'd rather pitch today or wait until the club played the Senators in Washington.

Turner has been through the mill and realizes the weather in the North is a gamble at this season and therefore he elected to do his bit the afternoon.

ELBIE MUFFS ONE

If Turner wants to go the entire route today, it's all right with "Old Case." Lou Fette and Danny MacFayden have both pitched full games, the former against Brooklyn the day before breaking camp at Bradenton and the latter yesterday.

In the nine-inning practice game played on the morning of the last Dodger game, Dick Errickson and Elby Weir went through with relief, which gives Casey four hurlers who have gone the distance.

After holding the Senators to three hits for six innings, "Deacon" seemed to tire, allowing four hits and passing three men in the last three frames.

The heat was depressing and MacFayden did not attempt to bear down at all times. He was content to go along under half speed until such times as the Senators threatened to overcome the Bees' lead. Then he bore down.

But for faulty fielding on his part and the fact that Elbie Fletcher lost a high bounding ball off Johnny Stone's bat in the sun, MacFayden would have shut out the Senators.

With two out and Zeke Bonura on third in the second, MacFayden fell away to his right after making a pitch to Almada, and Melo tapped a slow roller back through the box for a single, scoring the giant first baseman from New Orleans.

Then, in the seventh a double play ball hopped over Fletcher's head and went for a double, which put men on second and third and only one out, thereby paving the way for the second Washington tally.

However, MacFayden and Fletcher made amends for their slips. Danny pitched himself out of some tough spots, and Elbie speared a line drive off Goslin for the third out in the 8th, with two men on.

ELBIE MUFFS ONE

On his four trips to the plate yesterday, Fletcher pulled an inside ball to right for a single, walked, cracked a hard hit ball off Buddy Lewis' knee to be robbed of a hit by a bad decision and then lined a hit to left, which took a bad hop and went for three bases. Fletcher retained his stance he used yesterday and continues to meet the ball as Stengel predicts he will. Old Case will have one leg worry to keep him awake nights.

The Bees and the Senators will pull out of town tonight on the same train, the former playing over all nights at Jacksonville before continuing on to Savannah.

Baseball Coach At Malden Most Optimistic

Believes Club Can Win League Crown

With eight veterans back from last spring's nine and three of them better-than-average pitchers, Malden's Coach Charlie McGeoch feels quite positive the 1938 Golden Tornado horsehide machine has a fine chance of capturing the championship of the Greater Boston League.

"Yes, sir-ee. Malden has the material and the manpower to take the laurels in the Greater Boston circuit," grinned Charlie. "If the nine receives any kind of a break, it should have a banner season."

SHIFF THE ACE

Of the three, Shiff, a two-year veteran, has the No. 1 assignment. A burly boy with a fine right-hand loss, Dave checked in with triumphs in 10 times out last year.

Cheek, announced as a coming big leaguer at the Bees' school last summer, and Gross, a fast ball pitcher who faced only centuries in 1937, have been coming up with some effective twirling in the daily drills and in the dual contests on the gas works.

In an effort to overcome the wildness he displayed all last season, young Gross is now wearing glasses. So far, the idea has proved effective, for he is now finding the plate without the least difficulty.

Back in the shortstop slot and captain of the outfit is Charlie Roffman, a gent who came in for considerable mention when the All-Scholastic nines were being selected a year ago.

Never a powerful willow-wielder but always a real classy fielder, Charlie expects to bring his high school athletic days to an end in glorious fashion.

He is sure he can improve his batting work this spring, and has already placed a bet with Coach McGeoch that he'll bat for better than .320 during the next three months.

CHARLIE ICE STAR

The Jack-of-all-trades of the Golden Tornado school, Charlie Hanifan, All-Scholastic back in football and All-Eastern League wing in hockey, has the big center-field assignment neatly tucked away.

With an eye to improving Charlie's work with the war club, Boss McGeoch has the big gardner swinging from the left side instead of his usual right-handed position.

Speaking about Hanifan, McGeoch remarked:

"If Charlie can improve his sticking, he'll make a neat all-around ball player. He didn't do so well as a righthie last year, so I'm making him take his cuts on the left hand side of the plate.

"So far, he has exhibited great improvement. We're all hoping that this improvement continues throughout the regular season."

Warren Mosher, a fellow who played on the second team last season, is also in the fielder's berth cinched. Coach McGeoch in his remarks said, "Warren is a hard hitting and a nice fielder."

WEAK BEHIND BAT

Another peppy array is going on for the second base assignment. "Skipper" Meadows, a transfer from Wilmington high, and Alec Cummings, another chap who saw service with the Malden American Legion outfit, are the participants in this set-to.

McGeoch claims that the only real weak spot in the present nine is in the catcher's department. Right now five boys, Ronald Brunelli, Gerald Fink, Robert Mangene, John Lavitsky and Dave Hillson are in the running for the position.

Of the five, Brunelli and Hillson fellows who worked with the second squad a year ago, have first call. The other three, however, are classed as "lulu performers" by Mentor McGeoch.

Rated a sparkling prospect for any utility duties that may come up during the season is Bill Arnold in the two weeks the club has been out he has played in every position.

'And Get That First One in There---'

Training Camp Gossip

By the Associated Press

SWEETWATER, Tex., April 7—The Pittsburgh Pirates, who start an eight-game series today with the Chicago White Sox, are looking to the season's first pay day with mixed emotions. Manager Pie Traynor has announced he will wait until then to announce which player is to be fined for rough-housing on Fullmans which was the cause, among other things, of Pitcher Russ Bauers' knee injury.

SPARTANBURG, S. C.—General Manager Warren C. Giles, seeking to bolster the Cincinnati Reds' outfield, has made overtures to the New York Yankees for Ernie Koy. But the Rupert Rifles—possibly with a few to Joe DiMaggio concerned—have not yet committed themselves on the rookie.

LAKELAND, Fla. — Tommy Bridges, Detroit right-hander, gets a chance today to see if a chipped elbow bone interferes with his pitching. He's slated to start against the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League in the first service since he hurt his arm nearly two weeks ago.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Brooklyn officials, with time to reflect as the Dodgers look a day off before breaking camp tomorrow, were wondering when Dolf Camilli would begin living up to his reported purchase price of $75,000. The former Philly first baseman has made five official at-bats, but he left seven men stranded yesterday, as Brooklyn lost its seventh straight to Toledo.

ORLANDO, Fla. Owner Clark Griffith was putting the accent on youth when his Washington Senators reported here six weeks ago. Today, as the Nats squared off against the Boston Bees, rookie prospects had gone glimmering, and old-timers Cesie Blurge and Goose Goslin were being counted on to play a good part of the season.

ALEXANDRIA, La.—The New York Giants are preparing two surprises. Hal Schumacher finally has decided to try out the slow ball he's been working on for two years, and is finding that it works. Mel Ott is making a habit of cleaning up the outfield by driving the ball to left.

SWEETWATER, Tex.—It's hard to discourage Willie Sox Manager Jimmy Dykes from playing baseball. Now that shortstop Luke Appling is on the hospital list, possibly until June, Chicago's pilot is toying with the idea of holding down second or third base himself.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — Today's game with the Browns is the last in which his starting pitchers can expect to be relieved, says Manager Charley Grimm of the Chicago Cubs. Starting tomorrow they'll be expected to go the route—barring accidents or heavy hitting, of course—with Veteran Jack Russell on hand to strengthen a staff weakened by injuries.

ALEXANDRIA, La.—The Cleveland Indians, who are only one man short of a complete squad, are looking over the 23-player limit effective May 15, will be at full strength next week for the first time this season.

Records Fall Merrily in Bowling Classic at Huntington Club

By WALTER KILEY

Pins splattered and fell with crashing effect, four new season's records were written into the ledgers and the tourney pace reached fever pitch as the William Randolph Hearst New England candlepin championships, conducted under the auspices of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser, passed into today's third last day stage at the Huntington Club alleys.

Johnny Tagg, "The Little Napoleon of Fitchburg," touched off the maple barrage when, as head man of a delegation of more than 50 men, women and school flingers from the Central Massachusetts alleys, he teamed with the noted Jimmy Gurry of Fitchburg to establish a new men's open doubles high of 1104.

Only ten pins off the Tagg-Gurry record pace and stepping up into runner-up position was the team of Albion Cate, 559, and Chesley Fratarculi, 535, both of Pittsfield, rolling their 1094 in company with the leaders.

ROLL 1050

On adjoining alleys, pretty little 14-year-old Dot Nando and Frank Giacoppa, also of Tagg's Fitchburg stamping ground, were knocking off the mighty total of 633 pins to take over top standing in the amateur mixed doubles.

But the Fitchburgs, good as they were, were but partial participants in the sensational bill of performances.

Just before the midnight curfew hour, along came Joe Grant's Kegs Alley Prides of Roxbury, a quintet of prominent members of the Roxbury Business Men's League, who went high, wide and handsome in establishing a new amateur team high of 1640 pins, a performance far and away better than the jointly held men's open team high of 1623 set by the Morningside of Charlestown and the Lucky Strike Specials of Lynn.

Finally came a new men's amateur double high of 650 accented for by Frank A. Perry of Malden and Art McDonald of East Braintree, supervisors at the 38th pin, and representing the alleys of Perry's Braintree in East Boston.

Frank Delorge led the terrific scoring pace with a three-string pinfall of 347. He was closely pressed by the able Walter Mitton at 345; following them were Dan Kenny, 340; John Kuhner, 312; and Charlie Stiles, 296.

Tagg opened his open doubles in highly impressive fashion, batting out a mighty 143 inaugural string and then settled down to steady, reliable continuing strings of 106—105—104—95 for a total of 553.

Gurry finished off Tagg's record-tying two pins at 551, with successive strings of 112—104—117—112—106, a brilliant combined performance, which stands as one of the two week's old title highlights.

For a time it appeared that the Cate-Fratarculi duo would pass its fellow townsmen. But a one-pin spare and then a two-pin spare let them down. Cate showing 111—96—130—96—126—559, and Fratarculi salesman for Mike Sabetelli's Fitchburg jewelry store, coming in with 102—110—116—108—99—535.

And only slightly behind was another Fitchburg entry in the men's open doubles, Arthur Lepage, 529, and George Fava, 509, finishing up with 1079 pins to slide into fifth place only a hop, skip and a jump back of Paul Poehler and Dan Donovan, in third place at 1090, and Billy McWilliams and Nick Pave of Providence in fourth position with 1084.

MAC CLICKS AGAIN

Brilliant to the extreme was the bowling once again of Frank McDonough of Jamaica Plain who the day before rolled 561 in men's open doubles competition and then returned on Wednesday to hit 353 as a member of Joe Robbins' five-some which amassed a total of 1568 pins. McDonough, world doubles record holder, thereby stands in fine way to reach the open all-events championship total.

The bowling tourney committee warns all men's open singles contenders that the entry list will close by 7:30 sharp tomorrow night and that by 8:05 at the latest the mammoth field, comprising every noted pinpusher in New England, will get underway with absolutely NO CHANCE of post entries being accepted.

So, one last warning to open singles aspirants, BE on hand every before 7:30 tomorrow night for the opening guns in the elimination series will get under way minutes later.

Women's singles in the open division will similarly start promptly at 5 p. m. on Saturday night.

Brown Gridders Out

PROVIDENCE, April 7—Thirty men turned out for the opening drill of the Brown spring football practice and staged a two hour session in fundamentals and conditioning work.

Coach "Tush" McLaughry will conduct the work for three weeks closing on April 25.

Worcester Lad Draws Scouts' Attention

Plan to Dock Joe DiMaggio for Balking

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—Cleveland's Ken Keltner, classiest looking rookie down South, blames his slugging on a spaghetti diet. . . . He's of German stock, but says he goes for the Italian food. . . . Some look what it did for Di-Maggio.

Red Dawson, the Tulane coach, blew into town just in time to catch a snowstorm . . . . The top Southeastern teams are going to be hotter this fall, sez Red . . . especially Alabama, Louisiana State, Tennessee and Mississippi State.

There's a campus movement on foot at Stanford to "retire" No. 1 from future basketball teams . . . Hank Lusetti wore it during his court career . . . Stanford football No. 1 hasn't been seen in action in 13 years—since Ernie Nevers wound up.

Champ family man of the Grapefruit League is Jimmy Wilson . . . There were three generations of 'em at the Phillies camp . . . Buddy Baer may come back to Madison Square Garden next month—but not as a winding performer.

Rollie Hemsley figures Bob Feller can win 18 to 22 games this summer "if he uses his head."

BOB TOW IN DEMAND

Baltimore promoters want to put on a rematch of that John Henry Lewis-Bob Tow tangle the Philly customers saw last week . . . Offer Tow $1500 guarantee to do it again.

What's this about Wes Ferrell tipping some of the boys off that his "nothin' ball" has nothin' on his new fast ball? . . . Golf queer ones: Lighthorse Harry Cooper clouted a golf ball 263 yards with a polo mallet in Hollywood . . . And Bob Sweeney, the British amateur champ, killed a seagull with a shot, and dead bird and ball were found a foot from the hole.

Joe Devine, the Yankees' head scou . says Joe DiMaggio will be docked for every day of training he's missed . . . There's a hockey team up in Toronto tagged "The Ashes of Desert Boo Club" . . . But don't ask us why.

Lou Gehrig's hose, again is following the Yanks around with a harmonizing trip . . . Fritz Ostermueller, Red Sox flinger, has had 22 operations for a shoulder injury in last five years.

Tip to Big League scouts: Keep your eyes on Eddie Stasnik, who plays a lot of third base for a high school team in Worcester. One scout is already looking him over.

Dodgers have put a $17,500 price tag on Long Tom Winsett, the $30,000 flop . . . Chuck Hoske may pass up Princeton's "dream mile" in June to go in the National intercollegiate the same day.

DODGERS OPENER SELL-OUT

Mickey Cochrane is sold on Rookie Ben Selway, a 6-foot-3 right-hander from Tulsa . . . Even though the kid was out most of last year with a sore arm—and is suffering some more of the same this spring . . . Brooklyn fans are all steamed up over those reports on the Chiffinus Row from Miami—15,000 ticket orders already in for the season opener at Ebbets Field.

Table Tennis Queen Loses 5 Pounds Every Time She Plays in Tourney

By MURRAY KRAMER

This charming young lady, who is now in Boston preparing for a table tennis exhibition at the Arena tomorrow night, is the No. 1 good will ambassador for the recreation that was once confined to "oddities in sport."

Table tennis, also known as ping pong, was generally considered a kids' game in these parts, to be played on rainy days at camp or in the cellars of wealthy kids who had enough space away from the furnace to set one up.

NEW YORKER OUT

But the entire situation is now changed, according to the charming New York girl, who was national champion for four years and has won the world title the past two.

With this background there is no better critic of the game, and her many viewpoints are interesting.

Miss Aarons, comfortably seated in her suite at the Lenox, answered a battery of questions fired at her and then came through with the information that:

"If you have any idea that table tennis is an easy game, how can you account for the fact that I lose from four to six pounds during a tournament?

"In fact the game is so strenuous that I would not recommend anybody over 27 even attempting major tournaments.

"The surface is so much smaller than a tennis court that four returns can be made in the same game to one on a regulation court, which makes this indoor game just four times as fast."

Miss Aarons then went on to explain the technical aspects of the sport and pointed out that women are almost on an even plane with men.

STEEPED IN TRADITION

To substantiate this argument Mrs. Lloyd Shepardson, president of the Newton Women's Table Tennis Club, insisted that Miss Aarons could hold her own with any of the recognized men champions in the world.

The charming New York girl, however, refused to comment here, but did say that most of her matches are against men and the competition is much keener.

Curious enough, this game has provided the champion with an opportunity to see the world. After she leaves Boston she will appear at night clubs and theaters all the way to the Coast, where she will appear in movie shorts.

In time, Miss Aarons hopes to go into designing, a field she has studied for some time, but she intends to have one more year of table tennis.

Ford Wins Title In 135's

ladder in order, we find that the 112-pound title went to Bobby Carroll, a colored boy from Newark. Bobby was much too strong for Jesse Selzar of Omaha and was easily the master.

In 118 pound class, William Geary of Philadelphia was forced to whip a teammate, Johnny Aiello, to take the crown. Speary, who was 112 pound champ last year, was easily the better boxer.

Bill Eddy, a clever southpaw from Flint, Michigan, had a beautiful body puncher, spotted Jackie Simmons of Kansas City the first round and then came back to take the last two and the fight.

The battle for the 147 pound title was the best of the night. Jimmy O'Malley, from Chicago, the outstanding boxer in the entire show, took the title when he scored a technical K. O. over John Santiago of Honolulu.

And what a fight it was! In the first round O'Malley threw punches as fast as he could pump his arms, and Santiago went down for a count of nine three times.

MERRITT by K. O.

In the second, O'Malley had evidently started to punch himself out and was apparently as groggy as Santiago.

Then, for some strang reason, Benny Oathuis, who refereed the bout, stepped in and awarded the fight to O'Malley on a technical K. O. What a roar went up! But Benny stuck by his odd decision.

Old Bradley Lewis of New York, who started fighting when Mac O'War was a two-year-old, found trouble getting around but was smart enough to make Buddy Waterman of Detroit come to him with the result the colored campaigner came through with a title.

The 175 pound final was a dull, uninteresting hauling and tugging match with Willie Muldune, a colored boy from Cleveland, outpointing Willie Collins of Philadelphia.

Daniel Merritt, a colored heavyweight, also from Cleveland, justified his K. O. over Frank Chiodini in the opening night by pinning a K. O. on Carroll Gerritsen of Tulsa, Oklahoma, in the second round of the final bout.

Title Plus Beauty

Clark Predicts Walk Over Win Against Samari

'I'll Make Him Quit,' Says Talkative Scotchman

George (Dazzler) Clark, flashy Scotchman, and Seelie Samari, colored heavyweight wrestler, will wind up their conditioning this afternoon for their headline mat battle at Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Clark, cocker than ever, feels he will cause a mess of Samari. He wants to knock off the colored fellow in quicker time than did Steve (Crusher) Casey, world's heavyweight champion.

"I'm going to give Samari the works," Clark said. "I haven't had a match in nearly two weeks, and the rest has helped put me in the finest shape since I came to America.

"I'm going to give that smart-talking colored fellow everything I have right at the start and make him quit.

"I want another shot with Casey, who would have already outwrestled, and know the fans demand such a match if I beat Samari quickest and more decisively than did Steve."

While Samari was beaten in straight falls by the champion, after he had earned a shot at the title by knocking off Billy Raetsch, Wee Willie Davis, Hans Steinke, Tor Johnson and Richard Stahl, the colored fellow showed a lot of class in a powerfully constructed and there are those among the fans who believe he will be too strong for the more clever Scotchman.

Samari, like Clark, wants another shot with Casey and believes he can beat Clark as a stepping stone toward such a match. Besides he has been promised shots in New York and Chicago if he gets by Clark.

Nearly all wrestlers on tomorrow night's supporting card are in town. Vic Christy, popular and clever Californian, meets "Strangler Bob" Managoff, Canadian villain, in the special bout. It will be Wagner's debut here.

Preliminary pairings Dr. Freddie Meyers, Chicago, vs. Paul Bilzerian, Texas; Roy Dunn, U. S. Olympic wrestler in 1936, vs. Cliff Olson of Minnesota, and Wladek Zbyszko of Poland, vs. Sid Westrich, Germany

Gomez Kicks In $850 for 'Al'

Seventy-five Per Week Also Ordered

NEW YORK, April 7 (INS)—Vernon "Lefty" Gomez, star left-handed pitcher of the New York Yankees, was due to pitch $500 in cash into the New York Supreme Court today as back alimony and counsel fees for June O'Dea Gomez, his beautiful wife

While eLfty is in training in Florida with his team his attorney will turn the cash over to the court and "Lefty" will be given a postponement on the suit his wife has brought against him for separation provided he pays $75 a week alimony without fail.

Tendler Picks Ross To Beat Armstrong

DETROIT, April 7 (INS)—Busy Henry Armstrong will take a licking when he steps out of the featherweight division to try to wrest the welterweight crown from Champion Barney Ross.

Lew Tendler made the prediction today and there are few prediction makers with a greater right to say their piece. "Lefty Louie" made the same try 15 years ago and was handed a drubbing for his foolhardiness

"I only weighed 125 pounds when I tried to beat Benny Leonard for the world's lightweight championship," said Lew. "I didn't learn my lesson the first time. I went back and proved the old adage about a good big man always beating the good little man. Leonard beat me the second time, too."

The memories of those two socktests, golden memories to all fight fans, softened Tendler's flat-marzed face. He reminisced:

LEONARD GREAT

"Leonard was great—but I was pretty good too. The weight advantage beat me, and I think it will beat Armstrong, even though he is without question the greatest fighter in his class today.

"The trouble is Ross, too, is the greatest fig ter in his class. Both boys are great battlers, and I think the difference will be in the weight.

"Ross may have an off night, of course, but according to everything that anyone has learned about this game Ross should beat Armstrong."

"Anything can happen once, but in the long run the odds are against the fighter who pokes his nose into the other fellow's backyard, in this case the heavier division. Armstrong will have to stop some place and I think it is going to be at that welterweight class.

PICKED OVER AMBERS

"He may beat Lou Ambers for the lightweight title, but Ross—that's biting off too much," concluded Lew and moved off to where his protege, Al Ettore, blond Philadelphia heavyweight, was training for his Friday night bout here with Jimmy Adamick, home town boy.

Lew turned and came back to the conversation with a new thought:

"Remember Kid Williams, the bantamweight, and Johnny Kilbane, one of our greatest featherweights? Well, Williams tried to beat Kilbain and got beaten. Kilbain didn't learn a lesson by whipping Williams, for he went after Leonard, and Benny knocked him out in the early rounds."

Race Plans Settled Soon

Riddle, Admiral Owner, Going to New York

NEW YORK, April 7 (INS)—Plans for a proposed match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit probably will be settled here within a few days in a conference among Samuel D. Riddle, owner of the Admiral, John D. Hertz, chairman of the Arlington Park Jockey Club board, and Herbert Sayard Swope, New York racing commission chairman.

Riddle telegraphed Hertz and Swope that he would make a special trip here to discuss the $100,000 race, which is sought by Arlington Park, Chicago, for July and by New York's Belmont Park for next fall.

Riddle's telegram was first official word from him relative to the proposal, while Howard previously had advised Swope to equal the Arlington bid of $100,000, which has been done.

It generally was assumed here that Belmont Park had the inside track on the classic because of friendship between Riddle and Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing Association, by which Belmont is operated.

Among other things, Riddle raced War Admiral at Hialeah during the past winter, entering the Widener Handicap, instead of going to Santa Anita for the more lucrative Santa Anita Handicap.

Harvard Ski Team Beats Eli, Tiger

PINKHAM NOTCH, N. H., April 7 (AP)—Harvard's Crimson flew above Yale's blue and Princeton's orange and black today after a Cambridge team's victory in yesterday's big three slalom down Tuckerman's Ravine.

Harvard's men finished the course in a combined time of 278.6 seconds to 349.4 seconds for Yale and 562 for Princeton.

Serge Gagarin of Yale captured individual honors, making two skillful runs in 61 seconds. Behind him came Appel, Harvard, 62.4; Thomas, Harvard, 66.4, and Emerson, Harvard, 73.3. Jennings, of Princeton, first old Nassau man to finish, came in ninth, in 103.1 seconds.

R. I. Reds Choice Over Syracuse

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 7 (AP)—The Rhode Island Reds face the Syracuse Stars here tonight in the first game of a three-out-of-five series for the championship of the International-American Hockey League.

The Reds gained the Fontaine Cup and the eastern division title when they turned back the Philadelphia Ramblers, two games to one, while Syracuse took the western division championship by trimming the Cleveland Barons, two games to none.

The Reds were rated favorites here on the basis of the season's records. In eight games with Syracuse, they won three, lost one and tied four.

Squash Final

NEW YORK, April 7—Tom Tannicelli, defending champion from the Short Hill (N. J.) club, and Roland Dutton, professional at the New York A. C. and last year's runner-up, again qualified to meet for the world's open squash tennis championship by gaining semifinal victories.

Rudy Hulswitt New B's Scout

To Help Coach Evansville

Rudy Hulswitt, recent Brooklyn scout and coach has been signed to act in a similar capacity with the Boston Bees, it was announced today by John Quinn.

Hulswitt was with the Red Sox when they turned back the Philadelphia Athletics in the 1929 world series. He will report to Quinn and take charge of the team and when Bob shifted to Brooklyn, Ernie went along with him.

The new addition to the Bees' staff has left for the Evansville, Indiana farm team of the Boston club where he will help the squad to round into shape. It is expected that Rudy will scout the minor leagues.

Bay State Trade Now Irregular

Gains in Some Directions Are Offset by Losses Elsewhere

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Business condition reports for Massachusetts this week show the uneven trends prevailing in leading manufacturing industries. An upward tilt in one direction is more than offset by activity dips in others and the net result is that we cannot report the looked for improvement.

In the majority of shoe towns to the area conditions are at or above the average. Such gains, however, are more than lost to the general trade picture because the majority of textile and other factories are operating on a curtailed basis. Insofar as actual trade is concerned the greater activity reported for retail lines is offset by reports from wholesalers that their business is sub-normal. The New England picture is little different from that in the United States as most important indices showing a continuation of previous downtrends.

• • •

From a price standpoint cotton textile makers have been contending with a weak raw stock market and while prices show very little change woolen and worsted yarns are moving very slowly. The situation is not much the same in the shoe and leather trade and there is little hope for a change just as long as buyers show little inclination to cover more than present needs. Rayon is a bright spot with sales averaging very strong decreasing and conditions improving all around.

• • •

THE NATION'S BUSINESS

In contrast with local conditions business throughout the country is turning in what might be termed a normal seasonal performance. This means that during March trade showed appreciable gains over January and February. At first glance composite trade index may not seem to reflect this improvement but that is due to the fact they are adjusted for seasonal variations. The Federal Reserve Board index of production is expected to register 103 when March data are in. This level, the third month it has clung around that point. Early estimates for this month indicate an even slightly better performance may be turned in.

• • •

All the above is indicative of newly found trade stability which, so we have often emphasized, must precede an upturn. It represents the recuperative stage during which pared confidence basis of and prices are conditioned for later recovery. Another month or two and the business pessimist should be ready to begin the slow climb back to normalcy.

• • •

RALLY LIMITS STUDIED

One of the most hazardous phases of short turn trading is picking the likely limits for technical reversals, be they up or down. In the present instance there is some disagreement as indicated here yesterday so we have tried to find what appeal for us as logical upside limits. Using the Dow-Jones industrials as one guide it seems that this 110-118 area could be reached. The rail index compiled by the same source might like to around 30 to 32 and in both cases better than minimum average recoveries which, if assisted before a complete decline, should be used for liquidation

• • •

The rails have a hard row to hoe in that management does not see any real hope of quick governmental action to aid them in their present plight. And as a consequence, is said to be determined to seek lower wage rates and rate increases in freight tariffs. But these things, too, come slowly, if at all, and the rail group must therefore stand or fall on what is actually happening at the moment.

Haney Unveils Chief Causes Of Depression

Recession Like "Deal" Acts—Unexpected And Violent

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University)
Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, April 7—The recent evidence of continued weakness in commodity and security markets reminds us of the seriousness of the business depression. Thus far, there has been too little of the normal spring rise to allow us to hope for much recovery in the near future.

This seems to be a good time to inquire what plunged us back into the depression.

Some people have written to me arguing that the administration deliberately wrecked the ship of state in order to create another emergency.

I do not believe this. The depression may help the New Deal leader in his quest for centralized power; but I, for one, believe that he knew too well the danger of being blamed for the depression to have allowed him deliberately to have pushed the country into a crisis.

SILLIER AGREEMENT

Other people argue that some mysterious and unspecified "big business men" created a depression for the purpose of pinning it on the New Deal. Since this involves committing business suicide, it does not seem reasonable. This argument is even sillier than the one that Roosevelt wanted a depression and purposely pushed business into one.

What, then, is the cause of this great depression that marks President Roosevelt's administration?

First, I find that the New Deal policies were chiefly responsible for stimulating the "boom" in 1936. The huge government spending began inflation and rapidly raising prices. The radical labor policies caused fear of rising costs and difficulty in getting delivery of goods on account of sit-down strikes.

Second, Mr. Roosevelt acknowledged that he and his brain trusters were in control. He said: "We planned that way." Thus he knew that he was running the show, and assumed full responsibility for results.

Third, we all remember what happened in 1937. Mr. Roosevelt became alarmed at the rise in business. He jammed down the brakes thinking he could control things. Almost immediately, he stalled the motor, and the car started to slide down hill.

He raised the required amount of bank reserves. He shut off government spending. He issued statements that prices were too high, and that industries were too active.

LOST HIS HEAD

Fourth, the peak of the boom in March, 1937, and the big crash in September, were so closely related to Mr. Roosevelt's acts that he can hardly deny that the one caused the thing to do with the other. In my judgment, he lost his head and bungled the job in trying to exercise control.

Thus the crash was precipitated by his decision to call an extra session of Congress to put through his radical "reform" schemes.

Finally, it is not to be forgotten that the country had been financially weakened by the New Deal taxes and monetary policies.

These are the chief reasons why the depression has been like New Deal acts in general—unexpected and violent.

R. H. Macy Has Income Drop

NEW YORK, April 7 (INS)—R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., reports for the year ended January 29 net income of $4,179,959 after taxes and charges, equal to $3.52 a share compared with $4,604,908 or $3.93 a share in the preceding year. On stock outstanding now the 1937 net would equal $2.76 a share.

Total sales of the company and its affiliated stores, L. Bamberger & Co., Edwards, Davison-Paxon Co. in Atlanta and the Lasalle & Koch Co. in Toledo were $135,871,400 against $130,441,310 in the preceding year, an increase of 4.1 per cent. Macy's retail sales were $90,960,955 against $87,338,606 an increase of 4.3 per cent.

Reduction in inventories is noted in the fact that stocks and outstanding orders on January 29, 1938, were $4,217,365 less than the preceding year.

Babcock & Wilcox Split Approved

Babcock & Wilcox annual meeting approved recommendation that capital stock be split three-for-one and that authorized capitalization be increased to 1,000,000 shares from 250,000.

President Pratt said business had and improved since start of the year and the backlog has been reduced further. He stated, however, quotations on public utility works continued larger than actual orders and also that industrial work might prove large when conditions was restored.

Gen. Am Investors

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP)—General American Investors Co. reported today net assets as of March 31 of $31,382,407, equal to 45.46 a share of common stock, compared with $24,727,898, or $8.09 a common share as of December 31.

Program to Aid Regional Marts

Plan to Strengthen Smaller Stock Exchanges Initiated by SEC

WASHINGTON, April 7 (INS)—A long-range program to strengthen the smaller stock exchanges to provide industry with regional capital markets has been initiated by the SEC.

This was revealed today as the commission prepared to facilitate the merger of the San Francisco stock and curb exchanges in a move to give that city one of the leading securities markets in the country.

Commission officials indicated that some reshuffling of the score or more existing stock markets might be desirable. It was explained that the principal function of the markets outside New York city is to provide service to smaller industries.

SEVERAL NOT USEFUL

Several of these regional stock exchanges are not serving any particular useful purpose, according to officials, and might properly be eliminated.

For this reason, the commission is preparing to build up those regional stock markets it considers of value to business. In addition, it will look with favor upon establishments of additional stock exchanges in any industrial area that has need for such a venture.

The entire program, officials said, is part of the administration's campaign to stimulate business and to supply local capital needs.

Location of stock exchanges in Texas is particularly favored by some SEC aides. At present this state has no securities market despite industrial expansion in the area.

To build up those exchanges that are considered useful, the SEC is allowing certain of the smaller markets to trade in stocks and bonds that are listed on the New York markets. This provides additional trading volume for these regional exchanges and increases the revenues of their members.

DEAL LIBERALLY

Abuse options, commission officials, who must pass on applications for unlisted trading privileges, is reported to have been ordered to deal liberally with the requests from small exchanges.

The projected merger of the San Francisco stock and curb markets will receive SEC sanction within the next few weeks. At the same time, the commission reported that the Buffalo stock exchange has been granted an order allowing it to remain closed for an additional three months. This exchange shut down voluntarily some time ago because of lack of business.

This compares with net profit in the 1937 year of $1,064,505, equal after preferred dividends to $1.56 per share of common. Net sales totaled $36,397,782 in 1938 against $36,001,413 in 1937 fiscal year.

Hearings Friday On 'Fair' Wages In Hawaii

Sugar Cane Workers' Minimum Average Is Sought

By HERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1938, by International News Service

HONOLULU, April 7—Department of Agriculture investigators will start hearings here Friday to determine whether the 38 great sugar plantations on the Hawaiian Islands pay "fair" wages.

Under the terms of the sugar act of 1937, the benefits to growers are conditional on meeting departmental standards as to wages and other operating conditions. The benefits are accumulated by levying processing taxes on sugar refineries.

Practical executives here are wondering what the criterion for "fair" wages is. Their confusion has been heightened by conditions announced by Friday for complying with benefits for last four months of 1937. In order to comply, plantations here must make retroactive wage increases of from 5 to 26 per cent.

GOAL OF DEPARTMENT

The goal of the department is to bring the minimum average wage here of workers on sugar plantations up to $1.00 per hour, or $8 a day. The view has been expressed here that this mandatory increase will not affect the differentials between the islands and competing sugar growing areas.

The average wage now paid for Porto Rico, for example, is $1 a day and for men in Louisiana $1.50 a day.

In order to pay even existing wages here, it is pointed out, it has been necessary to operate on a large scale with the utmost efficiency.

The other hand, it is contended that in other lower wage sugar growing areas there has been a gap of wages which could be overcome, by mechanization and increased efficiency. I have been informed by many high officials, including Joseph B. Poindexter down, that on account of year-round work of farmers here, agricultural workers get a higher annual wage than farm workers in any part of the United States.

With sugar at the low prices prevailing, the marginal producers seem destined to operate in the red. Even the most efficient producers here, with the best soil, and the most favorable situation in respect to both rainfall and sunlight, do not think that they can make a profit at prevailing prices except by getting the cash benefits.

UNHAPPY SITUATION

Behind the present situation, as it tends to put the big plantations here more or less on the dole—subject to political control. The Department of agriculture policy of selling down the benefits in inverse ratio to the size of farms, or militates against the Hawaiian type of large scale operation, but has been followed by small mainland operations on the mainland.

The same is true of the pineapple industry competes with sugar for the limited labor supply of the islands, but the two associations work through planning to allocate labor.

The Hawaiian employers have long pointed themselves on the back for their wage policy, but this week they will be asked to prove that the benefit paying department of agriculture that their wage policy is fair.

Hint Wrenn Bros., After 40 Years, to Liquidate

NEW YORK, April 7 (INS) — Wrenn Brothers, members of the New York Curb Exchange for the past 40 years, have decided to liquidate their brokerage business, it was learned here today. They also said it was informed, Announcement of the final closing of the firm's affairs will be made some time this month.

The process of liquidation has already been started with plans under way for closing all branch offices first. The firm has offices in New York, Boston, Augusta, Me.; Bangor, N. H.; Portland, Me., and Providence, R. I.

No decision has been reached as yet as to whether any of the partners will form or enter another firm, nor had the firm today any announcement on the New York stock membership of Warner J. Banes, its floor member.

The house was organized in 1898 by Philip W. Wrenn, the senior partner, resident in Boston. Its New York partners include Warner Banes, Philip J. Wright, Joseph H. Parkhurst and George L. Wrenn, special partner. Its out of town partners, in addition to the founder, Norman Wrenn, Kingsley L. Wrenn, 2nd, Samuel A. Anderson, Robert W. Emmons, James T. Baldwin and J. Austin Emory, deceased.

Discussions have been under way for some time for the sale of the business of Jenks, Gwynne & Co. into that of Goodbody & Co., both exchange firms. Reports were that Jenks, Gwynne & Co. would dissolve in the process of this merger. With some partners becoming partners in Goodbody. Members of both firms, however, declined today that reports that an announcement was imminent were premature.

Friends Urge Weeks' Reappointment to ABC

WILLIAM E. WEEKS

Activities toward reappointment of William E. Weeks as a member of the state alcoholic beverages commission were redoubled by friends today in view of surprise appointments made by Governor Hurley yesterday.

The term of Weeks, former mayor of Everett and forceful orator, is due to end Friday.

For more than a month, friends have circulated petitions urging that Governor Hurley retain him as the Republican member.

Commissioner Weeks has won himself a wide circle of friends since becoming a member of the commission through the way he has handled the business of liquor dealers in their dealings with the commission.

Several hundred of them have signed the petition, it was learned.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1938

Peace I have with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you.—St. John XIV, 27.

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. William Kelley, Methodist Episcopal Church, Natick. The next text will be suggested by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, rector of Trinity Church, Boston.

The Editor Says:

BEFORE the final passage of the Government Reorganization Bill in the Senate, Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, made one of the most moving and powerful pleas for democratic processes in the United States that have been made of late years.

"IN PASSING THIS BILL," said Senator Johnson, "YOU ARE DOING SOMETHING THAT OUGHT NOT TO BE DONE."

It ought not to be done because the Government Reorganization Bill delegates power to the Executive that should NEVER PASS FROM THE HANDS OF THE PEOPLE'S REPRESENTATIVES.

"LET NO MAN INSIST HE DOES IT FOR THE PUBLIC WEAL OR FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD," continued the California Senator. "ALL WE NEED TO DO IS TO LOOK AT OTHER COUNTRIES AND SEE WHAT HAPPENED THERE."

IN THE TOTALITARIAN COUNTRIES to which Senator Johnson refers the people have been ENSLAVED in the name of the "public weal."

DELEGATION of power and ABDICATION of parliamentary prerogatives—just such delegation and abdication as we have in President Roosevelt's Reorganization Bill—were the FIRST MOVES in the onward march of European tyrannies.

"It was," said the Senator, "a constitutional slip that enabled Hitler to get in. The German constitution gave Hindenburg power in emergency to govern by decree. He did not use it. HITLER WENT IN ON A GREAT POPULAR WAVE, WITH A MANDATE FROM THE PEOPLE, AND THEN HE GOVERNED BY DECREE."

The political parallel that Senator Johnson makes in that paragraph is so pointed that a child can see its meaning for US.

In concluding, the Senator solemnly said:

"I SAY NO MAN SHOULD HAVE THE POWERS THAT HE (the President) ASKS AND NO MAN SHOULD ASK THE POWERS THAT HE SEEKS."

THIS IS A DEMOCRACY. Democracy means rule by the people or their representatives.

The Administration's Government Reorganization Bill takes this rule out of the hands of the people's representatives and places in the hands of the Executive POWERS THAT CANNOT BE FOUND ANYWHERE IN THE CONSTITUTION.

If we are to remain free of the European scourge of dictatorship, this bill should be defeated in the House of Representatives.

It aims a more vital blow at our institutions than the bill to reorganize the Supreme Court.

The people's representatives said NO to that.

Let them now rise again to their full constitutional height and defeat a bill that will do more, if it ever becomes a law, to make this a ONE-MAN GOVERNMENT than anything that has ever been attempted since the founding of this Republic.

ARTHUR WINSLOW'S WILL

"The will of Arthur Winslow, State street engineer, who died March 8, explained the omission of public gifts in these words: 'Wastefulness and inefficiency accompanying public expenditures are a discouragement to any such donations.'" —News Item.

The will of the noted engineer concerns every American, particularly those Americans responsible for confiscatory tax laws.

As everybody knows, our hospitals, most of our large colleges and universities, and practically all of the charitable institutions in the forty-eight States are dependent on the generosity of philanthropic-minded citizens.

This generosity must continue if we wish to prevent a nation-wide curtailment of education, research, care of the ill and infirm and other necessary activities which in the past have made the United States the most progressive of nations.

But, as the late Arthur Winslow warned, the generosity cannot continue so long as the government seizes huge portions of fortunes and squanders the money.

There is a limit to the size of every estate. What the tax collector gets colleges, churches, hospitals and charitable enterprises will NOT get. That is simple common sense.

Throughout history the poor man has always been the real victim of ruthless confiscation of property and wealth. This is only new proof.

MAINE PASTOR SAYS "NO"

"AUGUSTA, Me.—The Rev. Edwin Cunningham of the Winthrop Street Universalist Church today refused to accept a $200 salary increase because he did not wish to increase the church budget."—International News Service.

The unselfishness of the Augusta, Me., pastor speaks for itself; no tribute from us is needed to glorify it.

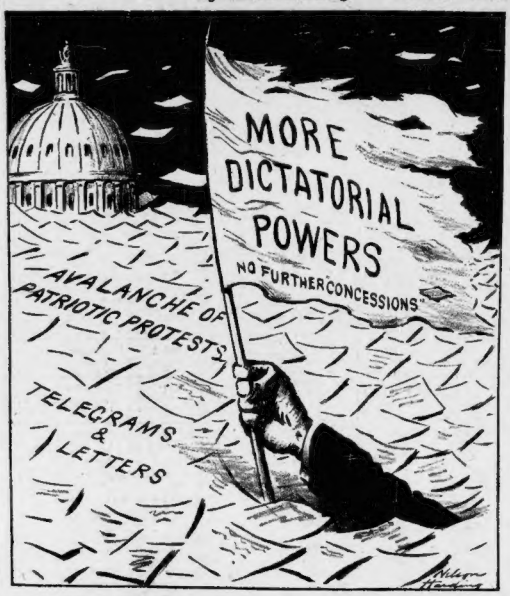
Yet two hundred dollars would make the obligation of supporting the Maine church more difficult. Consequently the Rev. Mr. Cunningham declined the money.

Would that there were more men with that strength of character in this gold-crazed world.

Still Grasping with an Outstretched Hand A Banner with the Strange Demand—'

By Nelson Harding "Excelsior" Revised



Checked by popular disapproval and by courageous opposition in the House of Representatives, the forces behind the Government Reorganization Bill offered a week-end "compromise."

It was, as debate quickly showed, a kind of "Heads I win, tails you lose" compromise.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

HARD times are a great leveler. Stuffy old clubs are letting down the bars to men they snootily excluded for years. Joe Zilch blinks with amazement when he is notified that he has been tapped for some inner circle of power and dominion which he had never dreamed of attaining.

There is a tactful allusion to "an exception to the initial commitment," by which Joe gathers that he has a chance to get in on some cut-rate exclusiveness.

Joe doesn't hold the invitation up to the light to see if it's a form letter. He joins, chagrined, perhaps, when he later learns that Bill Splivens, whom he had held in low esteem, also got one of those deckle-edged letters. But Joe and Bill get together at the club bar and enjoy the plight of Oscar Schmalsk, who is still on the outside.

In Edwin Markham's poem, the poet is snooted by an outsider. But, says the bard, "Love and I had wit to win. We drew a circle and took him in." Money as well as love widens the circles of human relationships, particularly in its "recessive" periods. It isn't merely that misery loves company, but it will meet paying guests on even terms, and with no questions asked.

One notes that down in Charleston, where ancient mansions are opened, Northerners are admitted, after furtive and embarrassed negotiations, providing they went to church at St. Michael's when they arrived and that they have never been divorced.

Exclusive big-city clubs are expensive establishments. Taxes and maintenance costs run on, and possibly up, as withdrawals in crease. They must get new members or close.

And here's a true story of a recent episode at one of the frostiest of the old clubs which some genial fabulist might elaborate into an essay on human behavior. An old walrus who had been in the club 40 years turned purple with rage when they let in a Wall Street maverick for whom the old club doyen had great contempt. Eventually the old-timer's grandson got in a bad jam and the gate-crasher was the only man who could save him, which he did. The two men got acquainted. They're buddies now, each admitting he was wrong in his estimate of the other.

It's the old Voltaire story all over again. He confessed the only reason he hated a certain courtier was because he didn't know him.

Another depression trend has shunted many clever young collegians into the theaters, with gains all around. They used to sell bonds. Obviously a lad with such histrionic gifts is cut out for the theater, and that's where he is heading, now that the bonds are as inert as a lily pad on a peaceful pond.

Princeton seems to lead in this trek to the footlights. Here are Bretaigne Windust, '29, in "Amphitryon 38"; Joshua L. Logan, '31, the director of "On Borrowed Time"; Michael Bartlett, '24, playing the lead in "The Three Waltzes," and Charles E. Arnt, Jr., '29, in the same show; Theodore Newton, '25, in "Wine of Choice," and Myron McCormick, '31, Jose Ferrer, '33, and Norris Houghton, '31, in "How to Get Tough About It." Frank Chapman, baritone, husband of Gladys Swarthout, is a Princeton alumnus.

There are Yale's Lanny Ross and Rudy Vallee and Pennsylvania's Burgess Meredith. One could pick scores of bell-ringing stage names from college alumni lists of recent years. The boys and girls are not only acting and singing, but they are writing, directing and staging plays and painting scenery. In this department's view they are stimulating and enriching the theater.

In 1930, Key West was the first American city to slump into bankruptcy and give up its charter. But again it's a going concern; now stirs with fresh ambition as they open the new overseas road and toll bridge system which connects it with Miami. Motorists may now roll down to the "sun-kissed tropical paradise," as the Chamber of Commerce calls it, on a marvelous road system bridging the inland sea. Key West is all of that and it responds as did the sleeping princess when the prince broke through the hedge of thorns.

There is in this vast country a diversity, a flux, a regional variety of wealth and resources which is always challenging the killjoys. Key West was as dead as a mackerel, and here it is again going strong.

Ghosts are walking around Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue. They are remodeling the old Grand Opera House where Langtry, Booth, Jefferson and Modjeska played. Jim Fisk (Jubilee Jim) left his Erie railroad offices there to go to a directors' meeting, and thence to the Broadway Central Hotel, where old Edward J. Stokes shot him in a row over money and, incidentally, over the dazzling Josie Mansfield.

Most New Yorkers know something of the story of Fisk and Stokes, but few know of the fascinating Broadway Central Hotel at 673 Broadway, still jogging along. There's one of the most imposing survivals of Victorian swank and elegance in all the world—crystal, ormulu, mosaics, needle-point, Sevres and brie-a-brac in quantities sufficient to make a huge and authentic museum.

The Voice of New York

By Louis Sobol

CASUAL FRAGMENTS: Postmaster-General James J. Farley attends every fight of importance but I have rarely seen him at play or cinema premiere . . . The columnistic dude, Lucius Beebe, is off on another Western junket—photographing locomotives . . . Otto Soglow, creator of the paunchy "Little King," is a thinner edition of his tiny hero with ambitions to be a stage personality . . . Where is Henry Clive these days? . . . Young John Jacob Astor is a monosyllable conversationalist—but a devilish sloucher . . . A letter in current issue of Town and Country exposes James Roosevelt as an effegter of wine-colored and royal-blue dinner outfits—in the throbbing heydey of his youth . . .

One hotel and one cinema house are reviving old-time silent movies . . . Early Harold Lloyd, Charlie Chaplin, desperate, but beautiful Pearl White, Two-Gun Broncho Billy, Tight-lipped William S. Hart—our heroes and heroines and villains of pre-war era are to be restored to us and perhaps with them will return the gentle thrills of the days that were before Recessions, Purges, Anschuluses, and Reorganization Bills.

Heroine of an inspiring saga of pluck is a young woman named Milesanda de la Gilaise who, under the nom de plume of "Mary Ann," writes a monthly children's feature for a magazine. Her back was broken in a street car accident 16 months ago. Strapped flat in bed, unable to lift her head, she scrawls out her whimsicals at painful full-arm's length with a reflector device attached to the ceiling as her only guide. I am told her features are so popular she receives 3000 fan letters a month.

You can count the newspapermen on the fingers of one hand who haven't at some time or other, cherished the secret ambition to own or edit a little country newspaper. To be able to write as you please about whom you please in any way you please, that is heaven for most of us. Even now a group of Better-Knowns, headed by Quentin Reynolds, Ursula Parrott, Heywood Broun, John Erskine, Gene Tunney and half a dozen others are conspiring to inflict a weekly on the meek citizenry of Westport—and it should be lots of fun.

Back where I came from, the happiest fellow I knew was the old gent who ran a small daily in Naugatuck, Connecticut. He not only owned and edited the four-page paper, but set the type himself, by hand—and defied libel laws when he had a peeve. We all envied him.

I correspond occasionally with Ethel Curley Willis, the wife of the editor of a country gazette in Grand Meadows, Minnesota. If her husband is happy—she is even happier—for she has the rare privilege of conducting a column headed "Observations of the Editor's Wife." There is wistfulness in one of her paragraphs. "When we see those post cards sent to friends here by folks sojourning in the South, showing orange blossoms, flame vine, purple bougainvillea, flowering quince, azaleas and the stately palms, it sets us to day-dreaming again."

Where will you find a horse and buggy and a cow on top of a roof? Why, in Greenwich Village, my eager children. Day and night, winter and summer, that horse and his sulky stand proudly over Jack Delaney's saloon and across the way, over a dairy lunchroom, is the meek cow. Around the corner, the thinnest and longest giant of a Gaucho keeps guard, crushed into a cut-out in the building's facade.

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, April 7.

NO MAN more easily than Mr. Roosevelt falls into the popular human failing of assuming that because he favors a thing it is righteous.

But the President carries this far beyond the common experience. Thus those who oppose him are wicked.

Mr. Roosevelt has stressed the fact that he now desires an investigation of TVA—provided it is "fair."

It is probable that the investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority and Dr. Morgan's charges will be fair. But if so, it will be because public opinion will demand fairness. If this joint committee is "fair" it will be the first investigation committee of Congress in five years that has been.

"Fairness" to Mr. Roosevelt's mind means partiality to his side of a question. There is no escape from that conclusion. Moreover, it is a psychological phenomenon which permeats the whole New Deal.

When Hugo Black was obtaining private telegrams to bolster an investigation—a device so unfair that the courts afterwards condemned it—Mr. Roosevelt did not demand a "fair" investigation.

When Vice-President Garner rendered a decision by which the present half-billion-dollar Farm Act was so completely rewritten in conference that the conferees actually put into that measure provisions which had not been in either Senate or House bill, Mr. Roosevelt addressed no homilies on "fairness" to his open-mouthed disciples of the press.

Senator Byrd, of Virginia, was chairman of a committee which for weeks had been investigating governmental reorganization, with a view to effecting efficiency and economy.

The President's leadership caused Byrd to be sidetracked, a hand-picked committee, favorable to and under the influence of the New Deal, was set up to report an Administration reorganization bill.

Was that "fair"? When a New Deal justice of the Supreme Court sat upon and rendered an opinion on a question upon which he had been violently partisan as a legislator, was the question of fairness raised? Not a peep!

When Representative Fred Vinson, of Kentucky, was kept in the House for four months to help pass the President's kind of a tax bill, and to help force the Reorganization Bill through by exercise of his great influence in the House, was that fair?

The House itself, privately, does not think so, for Mr. Vinson was appointed to the Federal bench by Mr. Roosevelt last November, and was confirmed by the Senate early in December.

Was that fair to the House? To the country? To Mr. Vinson?

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Aim a gun straight across that body of water and the shot might hit Copenhagen, Denmark, which may also come under Adolf's seven-league iron-shod boot some fine day.

Various nations of Europe have had a hack at Memel—Germans, Poles, Swedes, Russians, and now Lithuania. So what can surprise a Memelian?

Memel may touch off the big powder keg any day, for with Memel in her pocket Germany would control the Baltic from end to end.

Just to show how things really are in the world, Dr. Dubridge, of the University of Rochester, has gone in for "reverse alchemy"—and got away with it!

In other words, in a 5,500,000-volt atom-smasher he has turned gold into radio-active mercury.

They must be using something like that "proton beam" in Washington, where they can disintegrate a man's business over-night by turning the gold of his prosperity into a leaden depression by the simple device of taxing away his profits.

What's the matter with people? Dr. Jay B. Nash, of New York University, tells us. And it's worth reading, and then memorizing:

"The biological law of nature says seek new horizons or die. Nature says do or get out of the way. One of the sad things of the twentieth century is the large number of unmotivated people, people with nowhere to go, people who never start.

"A recent survey indicates that there are at least twenty million such people in America, people who, if they disappeared overnight, would not be missed tomorrow."

You must have an illusion that you believe in, that will become the active principle of your life.

"Our fashionable society in this city is a sham from beginning to end. It is bitterly unsound, depraved and unnatural—a deceptive piece of rotten wood, made to look shiny with French polish and glittering with the phosphorescent light of corruption—a copper cent trying its very best to look like a five-franc piece, and, what is worse, in nine cases of ten, succeeding."

Do you think that that is about Sodom and Gomorrah? No—it is from a copy of the New York Times of 1852 and was reproduced in "Godey's Lady's Book" under the satiric caption: "WORD-PAINTING."
